FIRE CAUSES $200,000 LOSS AT SIGNAL HILL

DEMPSEY HAS ALL OF COIN AND GIBBONS GETS GLORY

Several 'Prominent Citizens' Stand to Lose $200,000 on Shelby Affair

By DAVIS J. WALSH
For International News Service

SHELBY, Mont., July 5.—It is the morning after the debauch, and Shelby, just one of a thousand towns nestling in the prairie sage-brush where yesterday it was the focal point of a nation's interest, prepared today to live down the saddened memory of the Dempsey-Gibbons transaction for the heavyweight championship. Its preparation was hurried but thorough. Long before the eastern sky line had heralded the approach of another day many of the transients had gone.

Gone, too, were the raucous, profiteering concessionaires, the temporary traffic guardians and the cots in hotel corridors. Gone was Jack Dempsey, the successful champion, taking with him a sum not less than $250,000, the total receipts of the enterprise. Gone, also, was Shelby's further interests in affairs of the fist. The town, or to be more exact, several prominent citizens thereof, stand to lose about $200,000 for the privilege of having itself over-run by fighters, pickpockets, prominent bartenders and similar undesirables.

Financial Chaos

Shelby is all over and done with so far as the promotion of prize fights is concerned and it can now turn to the matter of removing the final monument of its folly by demolishing the arena with its thousands of superfluous seats.

The exact extent of its casualties cannot be learned at this early date, owing to the fact that the harried promoters decided half a dollar was better than none and cut rates with a lavish hand hand shortly before Dempsey and Gibbons came on. This raised the size of the crowd from 7,000 to 15,000, and turned the office bookkeepers to semi-maniacs. It will be all straightened out by the time Montana holds its next championship fight.

Gibbons Proves Game

The bout itself was only mildly diverting, Gibbons fighting a fine defensive battle, which is really another way of saying his activities were more or less uninteresting. He proved two things, however, namely—that his gameness is above reproach and that, given more advantageous conditions with the privilege of breaking clean, he can carry on with the best of them, big or small.

Lacking the height, weight and strength of Dempsey, he could do no less than refrain from the suicidal business of mixing with a champion who had even the rules of the state in his favor.

The bout proved something

Tex Rickard To Offer Gibbons Labor Day Date

NEW YORK, July 5.—Tommy Gibbons won't have to fight for a postage stamp again.

New York promoters—Tex Rickard—boss of Boyle's Thirty Acres; Tom O'Rourke, Polo grounds chief, and Jimmy Johnston, matchmaker for the Yankee stadium, were all casting about for a suitable opponent for the Minnesota man.

"I'll offer Gibbons a Labor day date," O'Rourke announced.

CHICAGO, July 5.—Acting on advices that airplanes were speeding to Chicago with films of the Dempsey-Gibbons fight for showing here, federal officers were posted at the theatre where the pictures were expected, and ordered to confiscate them.

The United States district attorney ordered the confiscation, saying interstate transportation of such pictures was prohibited.

The flight was originally scheduled for July 4.

Passengers on a westbound train loaded with pleasure seekers narrowly escaped the conflagration. The fire was caused by children playing with fireworks.

PRESIDENT TO START TODAY ON VOYAGE TO ALASKA

Harding Highly Pleased by Results of Speeches in Tour Thus Far

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
For International News Service

EN ROUTE WITH PRESIDENT HARDING TO TACOMA, Wash., July 5.—President Harding sails for Alaska today, highly pleased with the results of his two weeks' speech-making across the continent.

The trip has been one of the most remarkable ever undertaken by a chief executive in office. He has traveled 6,000 miles from Washington, delivered more than fifty speeches outlining administration policies on a score of important problems, made an almost daily appeal for American adherence to the international court of justice and virtually written the Republican platform for 1924.

Meets Big Issues

Not a single issue of major importance has been neglected by Mr. Harding in his epochal journey across the country. He has handled the controversial prohibition question without gloves, putting his party definitely and irrevocably in the dry column; he has pledged his party to a program of regional consolidation of the railroads; he has challenged the senate on the world court issue; he has talked crops to farmers; business to businessmen—and he will board the United States transport Henderson at Tacoma today, tired but well satisfied with his fortnight of experience.

Everywhere he has been greeted by tremndous crowds and respectful attention. There has been little of the wild enthusiasm of campaigning days, but there has been a careful attention on the part of his audiences that has been highly pleasing to those of his political advisers who accompany him.

Under Heavy Strain

The president is looking forward to his three weeks in Alaska and its environs with keen anticipation. He is tired. The daily strain of train travel, shaking hands with thousands of persons, the incessant speaking and the heat which has pursued him from the capitol have combined to exert their toll of physical and mental fatigue. Mrs. Harding, too, is tired. The strain upon her, in view of her convalescent condition, has been terrific. Against the advice of her physicians she has stood for hours in receiving lines, shaking hands and exchanging comments with thousands of persons and fatigue was plainly written on her face today.

Six days will be spent on shipboard, en route to Alaska, and most of them will be spent in rest and recreation. Barring mishaps, the Henderson will arrive at Ketchikan, the first Alaskan stop, on Saturday or Sunday and thereafter the progress up the Alaskan coast will be by occasional stops.

New York Teacher to Head Educators' Assn.

OAKLAND, July 5.—This being "women's year," a woman will head the National Educational association.

Unless the unexpected happens, she will be Miss Olive M. Jones, New York City public school principal. Miss Jones was selected by acclamation by the nominating committee after Miss Katherine D. Blake, New York, and Miss Mary McSkimmon withdrew when it was apparent the committee strongly favored Miss Jones. The election will be held Friday.

Committee reports occupied the time of the representative assembly today while scores of meetings of the various allied organizations occupied the interest of the delegates.

England Will Refuse Additional Arms Cut

BISLEY, England, July 5.—England will not reduce its armament further, the Earl of Derby, secretary of state for war, declared in an address here today. The margin of safety at present is "extraordinarily small," he said.

ACTRESS DIVORCED

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 5.—Ethel Barrymore, actress, was granted a divorce today from Russell Colt of Bristol, R. I., wealthy manufacturer.

TRAP VICTIMS IN HOTEL HOLOCAUST

Four Die, Seven Injured, as Flames Sweep Building, Blocking Escape

McKEESPORT, Pa., July 5.—Four persons were burned to death and seven others injured, three seriously, when fire of undetermined origin swept through the four-story Hotel Schmidt here early today, and for a time threatened a part of the business section of the city.

The flames, starting in the basement, spread through the building with great rapidity, trapping occupants of the upper floors in their rooms.

Panic within and without the hotel followed. While policemen rescued women and children, screams from other occupants, caught on the upper floors, could be heard a block away.

Two men and a woman, who are dead, have not been identified John O'Hara, 45, is the fourth.

One of the bodies was identified as that of David C. McCrea, 69, a decorator of McKeesport.

The seriously injured are Ben Coleman, 26, William Keenan, 45, Matthew Krast and Stanley Stokman.

Just as the building burst into flames, Miss Minnie Werry, night head nurse at the McKeesport hospital, chanced to look out of a hospital window. She rushed an ambulance and internes to the scene. The fire victims were taken to the hospital. One man jumped from an upper floor and died in a few minutes.

Police officers assisted Tony Wrzeneck of Oxwerton, Va., his wife and four children to safety.

Police Hunt Thieves Who Took Auto, Boy

REDDING, July 5.—Officers throughout the valley are searching today for automobile thieves who stole a car last night in Red Bluff, with a 6-year-old boy in it. It is feared that upon discovery of the boy he may have been thrown out of the machine. The boy, son of Casper Heer of Cottonwood, was asleep in the rear seat of the machine when it was taken.

Scores In Party On Co-operative Hunt For Gold

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—The lure of gold has lost none of its romantic glamour.

The good ship Fred J. Wood, a four-masted schooner, sets sail this afternoon for Alaska with a company of 105 men, women and children aboard to search for gold in Alaska.

A co-operative undertaking, those on board chipped in $200 apiece to outfit the schooner and if they "make a million" they will share alike. If they fail to find gold, they will have had a pleasant summer vacation, they say, at least.

The women have charge of the kitchen galleys and the men will man the ship under the watchful eye of experienced navigators.

An automobile and an airplane are part of the expedition's equipment. They are headed for Nome where they have a large placer claim.

The party is made up of Los Angeles and San Diego people. They will return from the north in October.

Irene Castle Seeks To Divorce Husband

PARIS, July 5.—Mrs Irene Castle Tremain, whose suit for divorce has been filed in the Seine tribunal, was scheduled to motor to Deauville this afternoon with her husband.

Though Dudley Field Malone, former collector of the port of New York, admitted yesterday he was Mrs. Tremain's attorney in the divorce action, he declared the suit had been filed without authorization.

Tremain, a wealthy manufacturer and former aviation officer, arrived in Paris recently from his home in Ithaca, N. Y., and friends of the couple say his earnest efforts effected a reconciliation.

Yesterday, after the news of the divorce action became known, Mrs. Tremain dined with her husband on the Boise de Boulogne.

The reported military activity is due, the dispatch said, to reports that the allies are going to maintain their occupation of Constantinople.

One of the unsettled questions before the Near East conference at Lausanne is the evacuation of Turkish territory. The Turks demand that there must be an immediate removal of foreign troops before they will sign any peace treaty.

LOS ANGELES, July 5.—Victims of the Santa Fe wreck yesterday near Albuquerque were scheduled to arrive here at a late hour today. Those expected are R. Schneider, Ernest Wardner, H. Merfield, Mrs. H. E. Smith, A. Gross, Mrs. Dora Schlesinger of Los Angeles, and Mrs. W. E. Lacy of Santa Monica. Three other Southern Californians, T. Vance of Santa Ana and Mrs. J. Russell Cunningham and Frank D. Delmont of Los Angeles, were unable to be moved, and now are in the Santa Fe hospital at Albuquerque.

BIG BLAZE AT OIL FIELDS THREATENS WHOLE OF DISTRICT

Hundreds of Workers in Fight to Bring Fierce Flames Under Control

LOS ANGELES, July 5.—Signal Hill oil fields were endangered today by a fire which destroyed two derricks, did $200,000 damage and was finally controlled this afternoon by Long Beach and Los Angeles Harbor fire departments, assisted by hundreds of oil workers.

Four other derricks in the vicinity of Cherry avenue, Crescent and Burnett streets, were threatened when the blaze furiously ate up the tall timbers of Union Oil Company's well BA No. 10 and jumped to an adjoining derrick. The Union officials estimate their loss at $150,000 while other damage may bring the total to a quarter million dollars.

The origin of the flames could not be determined. Smoke was plainly visible all over the harbor district and carried by a high ocean wind it was feared that the entire field would fall before the licking tongues of fire.

The Standard Oil Company and other operators dispatched every available man to the scene of conflagration which was in the heart of the oil district. Appeals for help also were dispatched to Los Angeles.

Bursts Into Flaems

One report was that the blaze began when a broken pipe allowed a river of oil to run down the hill side beneath hot boilers. The heat caused the cascading oil to burst into flames.

At the Petroleum Midway well, the loss was considerably less, for machinery recently had been removed.

Lekas No. 2 was also damaged to some extent.

HARDING PRAISES VICTIMS OF I. W. W.

Lays Wreath on Graves of Men Slain in Riots at Centralia

TACOMA, Wash., July 5.—President Harding paid a signal tribute today to the ex-service men who lost their lives in the I. W. W. rioting at Centralia, three years ago.

Early this morning, when his special train reached Centralia, scene of the riots, the president arose and, leaving his train, went to the cemeteries where the veterans are buried, and placed a wreath on the graves.

"The whole world," said the president, "was shocked by their deaths. Those guilty of the crime struck at the very bulwark of our republic."

The presidential special arrived in Tacoma more than a half hour late, because of the unexpected stop at Centralia. From the station, the president was taken for a motor ride about the city.

The French ambassador, Count De Saint Aulaire, has all the information necessary to answer any British questions as to France's policy, it was added.

BRITISH STRIKE BLAMED ON REDS

Food Shortage Is Feared as Dock Workers Walk Out In Many Cities

LONDON, July 5.—With more than 40,000 dock workers on strike throughout England today and many of the strikes unauthorized, charges were made by the Daily Express that communists were the power behind the strike. Seven thousand men struck in Manchester in defiance of their leaders. Two thousand joined the strike in London and many walked out in Liverpool.

Union leaders who have given strike orders denied the charge of communist inspiration and declared the issue was strictly one of protest against high living costs.

The strike is rapidly becoming a menace. Many sections are threatened with food shortages, and London's supply is estimated to be sufficient only for a week.

Peace moves were said to be scheduled for today. Union heads are anxious for a settlement.

Almost Unlimited Speed Cannot Have Everything
Bad Judgment—Death Motion Picture Exposition

By Gil A. Cowan

WONDERFUL new gear developing almost unlimited power is announced in telegraphic reports from the east where its inventor, an Australian, is displaying the simple piece of machinery which promises to revolutionize the construction of motorcars and other high speed machinery.

According to the reports the principle is very simple and it seems strange that no one has developed it before, yet it always does appear that "the world is just beginning to know." Perhaps chroniclers said the same in the days of King Tut.

For thousands of years the human race traveled along without automobiles. First, they had to develop highways, build tires, invent engines, learn to steer sleds and coaster wagons and even today it looks as though an instrument of destruction were placed in the hands of the multitude when the great Mechanician permitted the horseless carriage to be constructed.

The writer had occasion Tuesday afternoon to drive out Canada boulevard and there we saw an automobile salesman endeavoring to teach a person to drive. It was a most impossible task, yet in a day or two we expect to see this new car owner careening around the downtown streets.

Intelligence tests, physical examinations and demonstrations of drivers' ability may be all very fine, yet were it possible to reduce the qualifications to three cardinal principles the majority of motorcar accidents would be eliminated. They are:

"Think quickly, act instantly and judge correctly."

Incidentally, anyone who could qualify as a motorcar driver on those three scores would be competent to do anything well.

Many people are blessed with the ability to think fast enough, but they cannot act on the instant, or they display poor judgment.

And others who are veritable flashes in their actions are unable to determine a course.

While some of the best judges in many matters are mighty poor hands when it comes to doing things.

It seems life's compensation that one man cannot have everything.

Therefore we think it folly to expect much from motorcar drivers.

Two stunt flyers were killed at Santa Monica yesterday afternoon. They went up in a plane not designed for hazards. They knew it, but disregarded better judgment in entertaining the crowd.

How often we see the same spirit evinced in Glendale. People will do things which their judgment tells them otherwise. Naturally enough they have to pay the penalty.

It is human instinct to gamble with fate, to say nothing about money.

The Monroe Centennial Motion Picture Industrial Exposition is now open in Los Angeles. Thousands of people are coming hundreds of miles to see this great display. Will there be anyone in Glendale who will deny himself or herself the opportunity of attending?

From descriptions of the attractions as reviewed by critics the first of the week they are well worth traveling far to see. Invite your friends to come west this month, folks, and enjoy the exposition with you.

The Pasadena Star-News says: "General economic conditions in Europe are not so bad as generally supposed. According to Wilbur K. Thomas, executive secretary of the American Friends' Service committee, who has made a tour through Austria, Poland, Germany and Russia, betterment is noted in all countries except Germany. Austria, in particular, is taking up the work of reconstruction and is making substantial progress. In Russia, too, outside of the famine belt, industry is improving rapidly and the agricultural resources of that country are given developmental attention.

"Europe needs only to relieve itself of the incubus of militarism. It needs only to turn its attention from war to the arts of peace. Then the streams of economic reconstruction will begin to rise. This is the goal toward which Europe should set itself."

SOCIAL EVENTS

Enjoyable Outing

A group of Glendalians left early yesterday morning from the home of Mrs. S. Dutton, 139 South Belmont street, for Hugh's lake. They arrived there about 9 o'clock where the day was spent in swimming, boating and horseback riding.

Mr. and Mrs. William Prendeville and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hillis with a few other friends left last Monday morning for the lake, making camp where they will remain during the entire week. As a little surprise for those who motored to the lake yesterday, they had prepared a delicious chicken dinner which was served at noon.

Considerable excitement was caused early in the afternoon when a boat upset with Mrs. William Prendeville, Miss Dorothy Prendeville and Mrs. S. Dutton. Hershel Hanger came to the rescue and with the exception of Mrs. Prendeville being badly frightened the accident was not serious.

Later in the afternoon a program planned and arranged for by Miss Unwin, Mrs. N. Dutton, Miss Nan Wilson and Miss S. Whitaker, consisting of pie-eating contests, peanut hunts and races was enjoyed.

At 6 o'clock a birthday dinner was arranged for by Mrs. Joe Hillis, Mrs. H. Hanger, Miss Edna Prendeville and Miss Mildred Dutton, in the celebration of the birthdays of two young men of the party and Miss Ethel Dutton. The long table was artistically decorated with red, white and blue and a large white birthday cake also decorated in the patriotic colors proved to be the center of attraction. This feature of the day's program was also planned as a surprise.

After singing "God Be with You Till We Meet Again," led by Warren Prendeville, the party adjourned for home.

Those who enjoyed the affair were Mr. and Mrs. William Prendeville, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hillis, Mr. and Mrs. H. Hanger, Mr. and Mrs. J. Atkins, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Dutton and Edgar Atkins, Randall Dutton, Douglass Dutton, Junior Dutton, Ethel Mae Dutton, Mrs. S. Dutton, Miss Mildred Dutton, Miss Nan Wilson, Miss S. Whitaker, Miss Unwin, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Prendeville, Miss Edna Prendeville, Miss Dorothy Prendeville and Randall Wilson.

Early in the morning the party motored to Balboa where the usual beach diversions were enjoyed and a wonderful picnic lunch was served.

On their return to Glendale the neighbors assembled on the lawn at 331 El Bonita, at present occupied by W. H. Flynn and family but better known as the Van Etten place where it has been the custom for years for the youngsters to display their patriotism with a brilliant display of fireworks and the noise of fire crackers.

Those celebrating the day were Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Gilhuly, Misses Marjorie and Rosemary Gilhuly, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Thedaker, Misses Dorothy and Betty Lee Thedaker, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ashton, Misses Gertrude, Luella, Caroline and Frances Ashton, Wesley and Jack Ashton, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Flynn, Billie and Dickie Flynn, Mrs. Helen Cummins, Hershel Cummins, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. N. LA CRESCENTA

FIVE ACRES ARE SWEPT BY FIRES

Flames Started by Fireworks Menace Residence On Janviere Tract

Fire caused by a sparkler being thrown into the grass burned over an area of five acres yesterday. Fire Chief Young, who received the alarm about 10:30 a. m., rushed to the conflagration with all the men he could pick up. After using 14 chemical tanks and shoveling dirt trenches the fire was finally quelled.

The fire was on the Janviere tract above Michigan boulevard.

Dr. Clarke's residence was in danger for some time, but was saved, while a load of lumber was a total loss. Fire Chief Young states that with the exception of three days in the past three weeks he has been out every day once, and sometimes twice a day, to put out brush fires whose origin was apparently unknown.

Whiting & Mead company, general contractor of Los Angeles, held their annual picnic yesterday for the employes of the firm. Several huge busses carried part of the picnickers, the others coming in their own cars. The picnic was held in Whiting's canyon off Honolulu avenue. About 500 people enjoyed the lunch and sports provided for them.

Mr. Allen who has lately purchased a home on Sycamore avenue and owns and operates an oil station on San Fernando boulevard had the misfortune to be robbed the other night, losing everything in the station excepting the tanks and the oil therein. Mr. Allen had just received a shipment of new tires and these also were taken.

$500 for Church

Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Thomas of Cuddle Doon report banking about $500 as the receipts of their Garden Party given last week for the benefit of St. Luke of the Mountains building fund. Other checks are coming in from time to time from interested friends.

Scouts Harold Swanson and Lawrence Potter are home from their trip to Lake Arrowhead where they went with other Scout Patrols from Verdugo district to prepare the camp for the Scout campers.

The La Crescenta Scouts will go up to Camp Royl Kent at Lake Arrowhead about the end of the month.

Mr. Perkins of Honolulu avenue is still lying unconscious in the Research hospital in Glendale. He has only regained consciousness once for a short period since Sunday night. He was to have been brought home last evening, but attending physicians advised his staying in the hospital. Mrs. Perkins is the daughter of Charles Easton of Honolulu avenue.

Members of the Kieth & Angier families joined forces yesterday motoring over to Oak Grove park for a celebration picnic.

Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Miller of Montrose avenue entertained Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Miller and son of Huntington Park, yesterday.

C. E. Miller is a salesman for the Maxwell Auto company and the party motored to La Crescenta in the newest model of the Maxwell car.

Mr. and Mrs. Long and family motored to Bouquet canyon for their Fourth picnic. All members of the party had a most enjoyable time.

Mrs. M. B. Darrow, librarian, announces she will open the library at 6 and close at 8 p. m. Saturday evening of this week only.

Philips & Horn Are Now in New Location

Friends of the Philips & Horn Realty company are greeting them at their new location at 612 East Broadway. Owing to increasing business their former location at 116 West Wilson avenue, was inadequate and they were forced to find larger quarters.

They are now prepared to continue their excellent service in the new location on East Broadway. Five salesmen are required to handle the business of the office.

Dividend Is Declared By Research Hospital

At a meeting of the directors of the Glendale Research hospital an initial cash dividend of $6 on each $100 share of stock of record July 1 was declared, according to A. L. Baird, secretary, who will mail out the checks to 205 local stockholders about the 25th of this month. Harry E. Hall is president of the hospital corporation which was organized two years ago. Mr. Baird reports the institution is doing handsomely, running to capacity.

Famous French Villa Waits Rich Purchaser

PARIS, July 5.—"Arnaga," the villa of Edmond Rostand, is still awaiting its rich Spaniard or millionaire American. The home of the famous author of "Cyrano de Bergerac," which faces the blue Pyrenees, is for sale, but no Croesus comes forward. Last year the family called for 1,500,000 francs. This year they went down to 800,000. The state may turn it into a national museum if no buyer presents himself.

SHE SWINGS VERY MEAN CLUB

Lady Astor Can Golf As Well As 'Scold'

Nancy Astor, Snapped During Parliamentary Golf Handicap at Sandwich, Laborite Arthur Hayday, M. P.

Lady Nancy Astor, M. P., and wielder of a mean golf stick, can also wield a wicked tongue. In the house of commons recently she incurred the ire of her male colleagues by remarking of Mrs. Hilton Philipson that she need not "worry if she does not know much as she will find that some of her fellow M. P.'s know less." To which Arthur Hayday replied, "She'd do better if she cultivated her manners."

Petaluma's Dry Law Knocked Out by Court

SANTA ROSA, July 5.—In an important decision late yesterday Judge Ross Campbell in Superior court knocked out Petaluma's "little Volstead" ordinance prohibiting sale of intoxicating liquors in the town. Judge Campbell held it conflicted with the provisions of the Wright act, the state enforcement law. The decision was handed down in the case of Frank Grant, who appealed his conviction under the Petaluma ordinance.

Liquor Not Community Property, Says Judge

SACRAMENTO, July 5.—Husbands and wives cannot be charged separately with possession of the same illicit liquor, according to a decision handed down by Judge O. W. Anderson here yesterday. Anderson found Mrs. Mary Caparly guilty of possessing wine, but freed her husband when he was summoned on a charge of owning the same wine.

"Marital unity does not apply to bootlegging cases," the judge remarked as he dismissed the case.

MANY KILLED ON FOURTH OF JULY

Fireworks and Autos Take Scores of Lives Over Nation Yesterday

were killed and two little girls received fatal burns when their clothing caught fire from exploding firecrackers. Many others were injured, several seriously. Firecrackers caused a $100,000 fire at Grand Rapids.

Take to Firearms

CHICAGO, July 5.—Chicago, supposedly closed to fireworks, discovered today that the celebrators of the Fourth had taken to firearms. Of the three dead, one was drowned, two shot. Of the thirteen seriously enough injured to be reported to the police, more than half were victims of bullets. There were "bootleg" fireworks in profusion. Two deaths were reported elsewhere in the state, but the injured numbered less than fifty.

Balloon Explodes

LINCOLN, Neb., July 5.—Four more or less serious Fourth of July accidents in this city had been reported up to noon. Nebraska's Independence day casualty list probably will include no more than a baker's dozen accidents, due to fireworks and automobile accidents, three deaths and other minor mishaps.

Paul Peterson, a young balloonist, hurtled 300 feet to his death at Fullerton, Neb., when his balloon exploded above the heads of hundreds of Fourth of July vacationists.

Fatal Auto Accidents

BOSTON, July 5.—Nine killed and forty injured was the toll of auto accidents in New England over the holiday.

A child was fatally burned while setting off fireworks.

In L. A. District

LOS ANGELES, July 5.—Independence Day accidents in and near Los Angeles were divided between traffic mishaps and fireworks tragedies.

Reports are that there were seven persons seriously injured in traffic accidents and that two of them may die.

From dangerous firecrackers five small boys and men were seriously injured and two may possibly lose their eyesight.

Quantities of German-made scissors, razors and pocket knives were sold in England last year at retail for less than the cost of manufacture in famous Sheffield.

Manager Heidler of the Merchants says his team should be in fine form for Sunday's final battle of the Valley league series, when they meet the Lankershim nine on the home lot at Park and San Fernando, in a game that will decide the league championship.

"At present Glendale leads by half a game," Walt says, "and, unless San Fernando wins and ties us for first, we'll have the pennant flying over our tent!"

SHELBY SEEKING TO FORGET FIGHT

Several Citizens Have Big Headache Result of $200,000 Loss

else, to-wit, that Dempsey is either a greatly overplayed individual or else has slipped back from the form he displayed against Willard, Fulton and Carpentier. His punching yesterday was severe without being actually unpleasant. He was not the man killer of Toledo and Jersey City, partly because Tom Gibbons happened to be an elusive target and partly because the champion's punches seemed to lack the downright sincerity of other and perhaps better days.

At that many thought he was favored unduly by Referee Jimmy Daugherty's reticence in breaking the men from an unending series of clinches. The official, however, interpreted the code. The Marquis of Queensberry rules provide that a man must protect himself at all times, and is forbidden to hit with paving blocks. They must have been framed originally by Jack Dempsey's grandfather, so favorable are they to the champion's style, yet he failed to hurt Gibbons seriously in fifteen rounds.

As a result, it is presumed Dempsey will be besieged by Willard, Firpo, Wills and Gibbons himself for bouts in the East, where money and saps are more plentiful. It was the first time since Dempsey came into prominence five years ago that he failed to finish his man before the prescribed limit of rounds. The champion came out of the fight with a quarter million and tarnished reputation; Gibbons without a buffalo nickel and greater prestige than he ever has known.

THE FANNING BEE HIVE

By NORMAN E. BROWN

ANYONE WANT

A veteran pitcher with probably a few games under his belt?

Communicate then with Branch Rickey, Cardinal chief. Branch has been trying to wish Bill Pertica on somebody all season.

Branch sent Bill to Houston. That club didn't want him, so he was transferred to Memphis. He fizzled there and the Southern association team turned him back to Rickey with its compliments.

Bill ought to have several seasons of pitching in his system. He's only 24. Was born in Santa Barbara, Calif., August 17, 1899. Broke into league baseball with Los Angeles in the Pacific Coast league in 1918 and won seven and lost six games for that outfit while working in twenty contests before the Red Sox grabbed him that fall for a trial. They sent him back, however, and he won seventeen and lost twenty games in 1919. The next season he won fifteen and lost 1, and the Cardinals grabbed him in a deal involving six players. Bill copped fourteen games and lost ten for the Cards in 1921 and broke even with eight wins and eight losses last season.

Peanuts now take the place of cotton as a cash crop in regions where the boll weevil has made the growing of the fiber crop unprofitable.

Although training camps provide sliding pits and special coaching for each rookie, and a certain time set aside each day to improve the player's ability to travel the distance between bases in the least amount of time, the art of stealing bases is on the decline.

Some blame the lively ball, others improvement in co-ordination between pitcher and catcher, and still others give the credit to the more efficient manner in which the pitcher keeps the runner close to the bases now.

So much depends on a fraction of a second in base stealing that any slight improvement by either pitcher, catcher or infielder might be margin enough to smother any attempt to pilfer a bag by a runner who had theretofore been stealing bases successfully.

A runner who does the 100 yards in ten seconds covers seven and one-half feet every quarter of a second. If a runner is caught by seven feet he doesn't even take the risk of a slide. To get him before he gets within two feet of the bag is margin enough—and that means one-fifteenth of a second.

In other words, few bases are successfully stolen by a wide margin of time. Were the runner compelled to travel two or three feet farther, he would usually be out. So, if pitcher, catcher and baseman can increase their efficiency in co-ordination just a fraction of a second, they add just that much to every base stealer's handicap.

And that handicap has been biting into base nicking records like an orphan into an apple.

Records show that base stealing has fallen off more than fifty per cent in the last fifteen years in the major leagues.

Many players consider base stealing too risky. Yet records show that the base stealer has more than an even chance to steal safely. If he doesn't steal the chances are two to one that he will be forced out or die on the bases. Fact is, the risk of doing nothing is greater than the risk of taking a chance.

The National League reached its peak of base stealing back in 1911. In that year the Giants stole 347 bases, the high water mark in baseball.

In 1912 the American League players stole 1,809 bases and then hit the toboggan.

Some of the great pilferers of the sacks are Cobb, Collins, Milan, Rice, Wagner, Bescher, Carey, Sisler and Frisch.

Cobb stands supreme as the great base swiper of all time. Since coming into baseball he has led the base thieving pack in the American League no less than six seasons. Carey of Pittsburg gets the call in the National League.

Will Offer $500,000 for Dempsey-Gibbons Bout

NEW ORLEANS, July 5.—New Orleans is ready to go as high as half a million dollars for a Dempsey-Gibbons bout over the twenty-round route.

W. A. Coker, chairman of the Young Men's Gymnasium club, expects a reply today from his telegram to Richard T. Burke, secretary of the Louisiana state boxing commission who was official timer at the Shelby fight, authorizing him to land a Dempsey-Gibbons fight for New Orleans on Thanksgiving day.

"We have been assured the backing," said Coker, "and can handle the match."

Coker said he thought such a match here would draw at least a million dollars.

Divorces in Paris cost a little less than $1000.

WILLARD LAUGHS AT SHELBY BOUT

Jess Entertains Rosy Hope Of Regaining Crown From Dempsey

By JACK CARBERRY

For International News Service

YONKERS, N. Y., July 5.—Meet the happiest man in the world—Jess Willard, Kansan.

"And Tommy Gibbons stuck fifteen rounds?"

The sour faced man of the prairies, Jess the uncommunicative—actually sang this morning. The former world's champion, in training here for his meeting on July 12, with Luis Angel Firpo, bull of the pampas, scheduled for Boyle's historic Thirty Acres over in Jersey, was back from three miles on the road long before the first commuter missed the first train.

"Let me tell the world something," Willard advised. "The fighter doesn't live who can lay off over a long stretch and not pay the penalty.

"Jim Jeffries and I are living examples, and Jack Dempsey will be the next."

Whether anybody else believes it or not, Willard thinks he will knock the 'crown from the head of the king of fistiania some day soon.

Chance at Dempsey

The winner of the Firpo-Willard fracas has been assured the chance to meet Dempsey under the promotion of Tex Rickard—not Shelby-done.

"But strength saved Dempsey," said Willard, who is now under the direction of Jack Skelly, veteran planner of many battles. "If Dempsey tries to turn either me or Firpo around in a clinch—there'll be a new champion."

Willard today weighs 243. He'll be down to 238 ringside—the lightest he has ever weighed—he predicts.

Confidence has been restored to the Mountain of Muscle. He believes he can defeat any man in the world. But Willard is not making the mistake of Toledo. He is training. The road takes him in the morning. Then an hour in the gym. Fifteen rounds a day with sparring partners is his regular dish. He's going at top speed.

California Yacht Is Beaten in Cup Race

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 5.—Rear-Commodore Ben P. Weston and Angela, the R class challenger of the Southern California yacht club, for the Isherwood championship trophy, failed for the third time in succession to lift the trophy, now held by the Seattle yacht Sir Tom. The Angela made a better showing in the first leg of the windward and leeward, 8-mile race yesterday than she had in any of the two previous races of the series, but after that she dropped behind as the wind lightened and the Sir Tom won by a margin of 44 seconds. Patricia, Captain R. Maitland of the Royal Vancouver yacht club, was second, and the Angela finished two minutes and 56 seconds behind the Patricia.

Captain Owen Churchill and his star class sloop Maia, somewhat redeemed the status of the Southern California yacht club by winning the star class international championship trophy from a fleet of fourteen starters after a beautiful race. Commodore Weston, sailing three-star, was fourth in this race.

The WORLD OVER

By FRANKLIN B. MORSE
PACIFIC SPORTS SERVICE

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—Coach Callow and his University of Washington eight-oared crew accomplished a task they had set for themselves away back in the early spring of the year when they recently won the great Poughkeepsie rowing regatta.

When the men first got together for their preliminary training, Callow got his men together. He told them the potential possibilities they possessed as a crew, his practiced eye having assured him he had the making of a championship crew if all went well. At this time it was stated that the champion Navy crew which had won the event two years running would not again enter the lists.

With the Navy out of the way, nothing could induce Callow that his crew could not win the intercollegiate championship. So certain was he of this that he reckoned ahead as having already won the dual race against the University of California. He did not lose a minute's sleep over this aggregation.

When the rival crews met, his judgment was more than confirmed. The Californians were hopelessly outclassed. It was then that his crew began to imbibe some of the super-enthusiasm that enveloped Coach Callow. Always Callow held up before the eyes of his man the glittering possibility of being acclaimed the nation's champions. At the same time he studiously set about to make his men understand that it would be only through the hardest kind of work. The coach had to offset his own enthusiasm and certainty of success in order not to have his men become over-confident.

Then came the news that the Navy again would be a competitor. Things had gone so far now and the idea of victory had become so strongly imbued in the men that the prospects of matching strength with the champions, instead of bringing up any question of possible defeat merely served to determine the men that this crew must be beaten. The reward seemed richer. Here was a chance to determine their superiority against the best the land afforded. Previously the squad had been glad that the toughest hurdle had been providentially removed from their oad. Now they acclaimed it and could not understand their own former attitude.

Coach Callow has achieved a great personal victory. When it is understood that this man kept his crew on edge through all the long weary weeks that intervened between its victory over the University of California and the date of the Poughkeepsie, his feat becomes all the more remarkable. He had to pay as much attention to the mental and psychological side as he did to the physical. There were many who, acknowledging the physical material Callow had at his command, feared that he could not master the mental angle.

It is some time since Williams of the Philadelphia Nationals was eliminated from the race for the chance of beating Babe Ruth's home run record for the season. Williams went great guns up to twenty home run clouts and was, for a time, well ahead of the Ruth 1921 record. Then he suddenly became bogged. Folks who were watching him from day to day in the hope that Ruth might be displaced gave him all their moral support, but Williams refused to budge. He was still twenty home runs at the end of June. Ruth, in the year that he established his record, had twenty-eight of the clouts at that time. So both Ruth and Williams have lost all interest, just as the fans have lost interest in them, as far as this particular phase of the game is concerned.

While they are not saying anything for publication, and to all intent and purpose everything is quiet, there is a whole lot doing sub rosa at Stanford university in football lines. After years of disastrous defeates, as a result of a too long adherence to the English Rugby game after the other colleges in California have returned to the American game, Stanford is trying desperately to re-establish herself.

Money seems to be no object. The best coaches in the country are the only things with which she will have any business, and intensive training in season and out, of course within the spirit and the law of the conference, is the order of the day.

Stanford learned a lot last season. It seems almost certain she will be better equipped, footballically speaking, this coming season that ever before. Her men are beginning to get at the rudiments, something that they overlooked in their attempt to make a short-cut to victory. They have learned it is impossible to play the finer points of the game without mastering the essentials. And that is just what has been the secret of her failures in the last few years, if secret it ever was to the critics.

Already 1923 looks like the most promising one Stanford has had to defeat her ancient rival, the University of California. The latter has lost a lot of stars by graduation. It is no joke for a squad to be denuded of such brilliant performers as Muller, or Erb. And there are four or five men of the first line on the absentee list who are little less capable players. This is what injects so much hope into the Stanford heart. Her lines practically are intact—she will certainly be better and everything points to a falling off in power at the University of California.

Unless all signs fail, this will be the first season in many years when the outcome of the "big game" between the rivals was not a foregone thing.

HEARNE WINS IN GRUELLING RACE

Los Angeles Driver Flashes Home in First Place at Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 5.—Eddie Hearne of Los Angeles, averaging 105.76 miles an hour, raced to victory in a 250-mile national championship automobile race here yesterday, and went into second place in the national rating of race drivers. Hearne's time was 2:21:21.15.

Earl Cooper, with a time of 2:27:33.85, was second, eight laps behind Hearne. Harland Fengler was third with a time of 2:44:54.88. Dave Lewis finished the race in fourth position in 3:03:26.

Only five of the twelve cars which started finished the race. Seven cars were forced out by motor trouble. Only one accident marked the race, but there were no injuries. Near the end of the 105th lap a rear tire of the car driven by Harry Hartz blew out and swerved his car through the inside railing at the far turn. The car turned around several times, but Hartz was unscratched.

Jimmy Murphy, last year's national champion, was forced out of the race at the end of the 144th lap. Murphy had led the race up to the 137th lap.

STALLS AUTO ON EDGE OF RAVINE

Glendale Motorists Rescue Driver From Imminent Death in Abyss

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Reynolds of 910 Kenneth road had an exciting adventure last Tuesday afternoon while en route to San Pedro, when they proved to be a rescuing party. They had just left Lomita and, having gotten off the main road, followed a lonely mountain road about two miles and were about ready to turn back when Mrs. Reynolds saw a heavy automobile hanging over a steep embankment.

Upon reaching the car they found a man desperately trying to keep the machine from plunging over the embankment by the aid of the emergency brake and foot brake. He had been there several hours and was nearly exhausted when the Reynolds arrived. He stated he had been praying someone would chance to come his way and lend assistance.

The Reynolds car being too light to tow the other car, Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds gathered large boulders and placed them under the rear wheels of the car to brace it and Mr. Reynolds then went back to Lomita for help. After considerable hard work by the rescuing party they succeeded in getting the car back on the road.

The man, in relating how the accident happened, stated he had also gotten off the main road and, when endeavoring to turn around, accidentally stepped on the accelerator instead of the brake and the car gave a wild plunge toward the embankment. If it had not been for thick brush and a few heavy boulders, the car would have plunged over an embankment into a ravine many feet deep, and if it hadn't been for the Reynolds' arrival a real tragedy might have been the result.

MOVE DYE WORKS TO NEW LOCATION

Growing Volume of Business Calls for More Room, Owner Declares

The System Dye Works have moved just across the street to 102 West Broadway, states E. P. Beck, and will be open for inspection Saturday.

"We have moved from 109 West Broadway because our growing volume of business forced us to expand into larger quarters," Mr. Beck states.

Mrs. M. M. Beck, associated with her husband in the operation and management of the business, calls attention to the men's and women's dressing-rooms with which the new home of the System Dye Works is equipped.

In addition, this old and reliable concern, which has been established in Glendale for two and one-half years, has installed two modern steam presses of the most advanced type, which will enable them to turn out a very high quality of pressing work, speedily and efficiently.

Men will find the dressing-rooms a great convenience, the proprietors feel, as they will be able to wait in comfort and convenience, while their suits are quickly pressed.

A window offered the only exit. Yaksick smashed the glass with his fist and crawled out into public view clad in the style of Adam. Yaksick has asked the superior court to give him $5000 damages.

CLIMATE VARIES BACK IN INDIANA

Letter to Glendalian Says Mercury Keeps Acting Like Adam's Apple

A cartoon depicting summer and winter contrasts in Indiana has been received by W. C. Nisbet of 326 West Oak street. The cartoon, sent by a friend, is clipped from the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel, and shows a stoutish man in short sleeves, seated on his front porch, under the hot rays of Old Sol, a palmetto fan clasped firmly in one hand and a tall, cooling drink in the other.

At the side of this perspiring individual is a newspaper saying, "There is no time like the present to lay in your next winter's coal supply, while up above him, in typical cartoon style, floats a cloud wherein, in a vision, the plump party sees himself shiveringly shoveling into a huge mound of snow, while his wife, who stands on the porch, notifies him that she wants the back walks cleared, too, and he mutters, "I've handled a shovel so much I can't go to sleep without one in my hand!"

The sender of this cartoon writes to Mr. Nisbet: "It is cold tonight (June 20) and a coal fire would feel good. A week ago it was 102 degrees Fahrenheit."

Mr. Nisbet has written his friend telling of the ideal climate, winter and summer, enjoyed here in Southern California, and particularly in Glendale, where it is never cold and never hot, but holds an equable temperature the year around, such as can be duplicated few places in the world, if anywhere.

DES MOINES HAS GRAFT SCANDAL

City Payrolls Reveal Many Defalcations; Two of City Force in Jail

DES MOINES, Iowa, July 5.—How much more than $75,000 has the city treasury of Des Moines lost in padded payrolls and other bookkeeping irregularities in the last two years?

How many persons were involved in these thefts, and will the investigators ever uncover the total thefts and succeed in convicting the guilty persons?

These are some of the questions half of Des Moines is asking the other half these days.

Two former city employes are serving long sentences for their part in the thefts.

Another, suspected of implication in payroll padding, is a fugitive from justice, with several indictments hanging over his head.

And, to quote a City Councilman who has been instrumental in uncovering some of the defalcations, "Every time we turn over a past payroll record the city loses a thousand dollars."

Ace Sees Airplanes As Common As Autos

AKRON, Ohio, July 5.—Major Eddie Rickenbacker, famous ace, got up the other morning in Mt. Clemens, Mich., ate his breakfast, went to his office and opened his morning mail. At 9:45 a. m. he went to a flying field and boarded his plane, "Spark Plug."

In an hour and fifty minutes he was shaking hands with Akron, O., officials at Stow Field 150 miles away from his starting point.

And that's what will be happening daily in these United States in a few years. Rickenbacker remarked casually, as he prepared for a speech a few hours later.

"The day is not far away when every city of size will own its own municipal flying field," he continued. "In twenty-five years planes will drop down and take on gas and undergo repair just as autos do now. In a quarter of a century aviation will be the leading means of travel. An airplane can go anywhere there is atmosphere."

IS INSURED FOR ENORMOUS SUM

Rich Man's Wife Has $2,000,000 Policies

MRS EVELYN MARSHALL FIELD

What is believed to be the largest insurance policy ever taken out by a woman has been issued to Mrs. Evelyn Marshall Field, wife of Marshall Field III, of Chicago. It is for $2,000,000. The policy is divided among twenty or more companies because of the law which prohibits one company granting a policy of over $200,000 on the life of one person.

Camp Paper Brings News Of Y.M.C.A. Activities At Catalina Outing Center

FROM across the water comes a message from Glendale boys now in camp at Camp Leon V. Shaw, "on the shores of Catalina." The camp is a summer recreational and outing center of the Y. M. C. A. and, according to the letter received this morning at The Glendale Evening News office from J. Harold Rhodes, editor of the camp paper, this summer is proving a great one for the boys. He writes:

"As editor of the Shaw camp paper, I am pleased, indeed, to send you a few items from the first edition, as well as the name which we selected for our paper.

"The first item is a poem composed by Mr. Root of Tent 10. Mr. Root was formerly debating coach in Glendale High school some years ago, but is now an English teacher in Jefferson High school, Los Angeles. The poem is:

"When mother helped us pack the grip
And dad placed money on our hip,
We rushed to Broadway and Brand,
Where stood the train at our command.
With whistles shrieking, down we raced
And soon the harbor water faced.
The Avalon took all our freight
And felt a hundred boys' full weight.
Full seven chaps spilled breakfast dishes
The while they fed the laughing fishes.
At noon we hit the Avalon pier
And found in lunch a bit of cheer.
At half-past one we were afloat
Upon the good Virginia boat.
At 3 o'clock we went in squads
Upon the camp boat just two rods.
Where several lads wet half their pants
As in the waves they tried to dance.
A-playing baseball with the grips
And trying several fancy flips.
Soon all the baggage was ashore
And proportioned on the tents' smooth floor
In bathing togs we quickly got
And into old Pacific shot.
Till soon at supper piping hot
Rex Kelley told us what was what.
Once Joshua made the sun stand still
And showed the greatness of his will.
But Saturday Rex Kelley led
When he cranked the sun an hour ahead.
Then at the camp fire, well, well, well,
You should have heard the fellows yell;
Then books went round and songs were sung—
Paul Edmonds almost warped one lung.
When Nucoa gave some fine advice
That every chap should keep on ice;
We went to bed with evening prayer
And knew that God was everywhere
In every corner of Camp Shaw,
Encircled with his love and law.

Another of Root's

"Another item was "Impressions of a New Leader,' also by Mr. Root. It follows:

"'All Aboard for Boyville' was the slogan for Saturday morning in the get-away for the Y camp on Catalina. A tangled mass of boys and blankets and grips flavored with all sorts of fine enthusiasm was enough to make Methuselah a boy again. Together with this spirit of youth on this trip is the spirit of freedom; sidewalks, roofs and street cars give away to the vast waters, the open sky and the free life lived by the ancient Indian race of the island.

"'But however fine the spirit of youth and the spirit of freedom, the touch that makes a man most enjoy Camp Shaw is the spirit of co-operation and team work and service.'

"Coach Butterfield gave as the keynote in his camp fire talk the first night playing the game of life unselfishly. The Sunday morning service concluded by the address of Lester Cummins, also emphasizing the life of service. He said, 'I am glad I'm here. Every leader and every boy seems to enjoy the game. And in this game of life we are sure of winning, for Christ, the master of life, is our leader.'

Staff of Paper

"The name of our paper is 'Sea Shaw Sayings' and the staff is as follows: J. Harold Rhodes, editor-in-chief; Vernon Foster, associate editor; John F. Elliott, joke editor; James Moffett, Donald Weyand, Vernon Foster, Monty Murck, Jack Swearingen, Fred Appleton, Owen Dressler, Charles Marsh, Howard Ball, Grant Goodwin, Wesley Daley, Harvey Fish, Bob Garlinger, Edward Billings, Bob Findley, Ima Missen and Shirley Olympius, tent reporters.

"Floyd Winchell was elected mayor; Jim Moffett, sheriff; Donald Weyand, yell leader, and Riley Lyons, sanitary inspector, of our little town."

Daylight Saving Law Stirs Connecticut

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 5.—In divers ways Connecticut folk are showing their disapproval of the recent legislature's action in penalizing owners of street clocks set to mark daylight saving time. Stonington, ancient seaport, had its community clock draped in mourning bands and stopped until someone decided the clock wasn't on a public highway and then started it again on daylight time to await the arrival of police. A New Britain pastor ascended the steep stairs of his church steeple and directed the removal of the clock hands altogether, cutting off the town's most important public timepiece. A pastor at Torrington heeded his parishioners' request and ordered the sexton to stop the clock. And now all clock owners are awaiting the man with nerve enough to try a court test, while the general public is willing to foot the bill by subscription.

THEATRES

THE GLENDALE

"The Lights of New York," a William Fox up-to-the-minute melodrama, directed by Charles J. Brabin, is the feature at the Glendale Theatre today.

Folly and laughter, glitter and glare, delirium of city nights, the pace that kills, the tempter's snare—these are all in this vivid film, and more; for the brilliant cast includes Marc MacDermott, Estelle Taylor, Clarence Nordstrom, Marguerite Seddon, Frank Courier, Florence Short and Charles Gerard.

"The Lights of New York" is in two episodes, and gives a broad-gauge panorama of metropolitan life. The first episode turns the spotlight on an average New York family, showing the temptations and evil influences that must be met and overcome. The second episode shows a millionaire's home, with a bachelor dinner in progress.

Critics praise "The Lights of New York" as a triumph of realism.

SEEKS BUYER FOR HER HAYNES CAR

Veteran Journalist's Widow, Bereaved on Tour, to Settle Here Later

Mrs. V. L. Ricketts, widow of V. L. Ricketts, recently deceased, plans to return to their former home at Goldfield, Nev., with her son, Victor Ricketts, Jr., as soon as she can dispose of her Haynes touring car, 1917 model, in which they were making a trip through California when Mr. Ricketts was stricken.

Mrs. Ricketts and her son are stopping temporarily at the Hotel Gray, 604-A East Broadway.

After the estate has been settled, following their return home, it is Mrs. Ricketts' intention to come back to Southern California and locate, in or near Glendale.

Mr. Ricketts was stricken at San Jose, Saturday, June 23, and died the following Wednesday, June 27, 1923, of heart failure, at the age of 64 years. The body was brought to Glendale, where final services were held at the Little Church of the Flowers, Forest Lawn cemetery. The casket is being held in a vault until Mrs. Rickets is ready to make the return trip to Goldfield.

Veteran Journalist

V. L. Ricketts was a veteran newspaper man, having devoted practically his entire life to that profession. After several years of apprenticeship, he bought the Delphi Journal, Delphi, Ind., at the age of 25, his partner in this enterprise being Charles B. Landis, brother of Judge K. M. Landis of the federal bench.

Mr. Ricketts retained ownership of the Delphi Journal until 1913, when he sold out and became president and general manager of the Reno Gazette, Reno, Nev. Later he became general manager of the Goldfield Tribune, which position he occupied for the last seven years of his active life.

VISITORS PRAISE LODGE OFFICERS

Rebekahs Win Commendation for Splendid Showing At Installation

Visitors Tuesday night at the installation meeting of the Carnation Rebekah lodge were unanimous in their praise of the splendid work done by the local officers. Daniel Hall, the degree captain, was heartily complimented on his splendid directing, and there were other events of the evening reflecting the success of the past year under the regime of Mrs. Loretta Schwitters, noble grand.

Upon her retirement from office, and in appreciation of her efficient and loyal service, Mrs. Schwitters was presented with the solid gold past noble grand's pin, and a beautiful electrically lighted vanity box.

Mrs. Rozella Strother, district deputy president, was also honored by receiving a vanity box, a duplicate of the one given Mrs. Schwitters.

The lodge hall was crowded for the installation, and among the visitors were Mrs. Crippen, past noble grand of the Van Nuys lodge, and Mrs. Wells and Mrs. Richardson, past noble grands of Eastgate Lodge of Los Angeles.

NAVAL, MILITARY SCHOOL PLANNED

Influential Citizens Behind Chicago Project for Greatest Academy

CHICAGO, July 5.—Chicago is soon to have the largest boys' military and naval academy in the United States.

America's boyhood, between the ages of 12 and 20, thus will have an opportunity to obtain preliminary training which will fit them for entrance into either West Point or Annapolis.

Camp Roosevelt, one of the most popular boys' camps maintained by the government, is to be reorganized and enlarged and moved to the Great Lakes Naval Training station.

Scores of supporters of this project met at the University club here recently and by unanimous vote decided to petition the Navy department at Washington asking them to take over the whole or part of the land and buildings west of the Great Lakes station for this purpose.

Angus S. Hibbard, chairman of the camp committee, said the camp will be operated on a non-profit basis for the present and will be made available to "Young America" at a price which will attract youths from all corners of the nation. Graduates of the camp academy and college will be eligible for regular commissions in either the army or the navy, Hibbard added. He further asserted that should the United States become engaged in war the Federal government would take over the camp.

The site of the proposed camp comprises 605 acres of land, and plans recently outlined provide for a full educational and military curriculum.

MARKETS

NEW YORK, July 5.—The stock market closed strong today, the list showing buoyancy at the finish as ofefrings decreased.

Baldwin Locomotive sold up to 117¾, 3½ points higher than the early low and a net gain of more than a point. Corn Products went above 118 and Steel common rallied nearly a point to 91. The recovery was also marked in the railroad group, the majority of these issues showing fractional gains at the finish.

In Grain Markets

CHICAGO, July 5.—Reports of good crops in the Northwest had effect on the wheat market, and other grains followed the lead and were bearish throughout today's session.

Wheat closed ⅞c to 1⅛c lower. Corn finished 1⅛c off to ⅛c higher; oats, 1½c to 1⅞c lower. Trade in provisions was dull.

TAGGING ALL BASES

The Yankees continue to rope the field, going west with a lead of 11½ games. They made five circuit smashes in handing the Senators a double beating.

Grimm swatted the ball for a percentage of .600, and his hitting enabled the Pirates to annex both games from the Cardinals.

Pinch Hitter Myatt's home run in the tenth gave the Indians the morning game over the Tigers, but Detroit knocked out a hollow victory in the afternoon.

Although Ken Williams hit out his twelfth homer it availed naught for the Browns went down to defeat twice before the White Sox.

BACK FROM VACATION

Len C. Davis, president of Grand View Memorial Park, and family, have returned from a ten-days' vacation spent in the High Sierras above Bishop. Mr. Davis reports several limits of rainbow trout, and ideal weather for camping.

Watch your wagon that is hitched to a star—it is likely to fall some day.

PEASANTS RAISE RUSS STANDARDS

No Longer 'Downtrodden' and Phlegmatic,' Says Leonid Krassin

LONDON, July 5.—No longer is the Russian peasant a slow, phlegmatic, downtrodden, hopeless individual, according to Leonid Krassin, soviet foreign trade commissar.

"The peasant is today the citizen and lord of all the Russian realm," declared Krassin. "All the land belongs to him, and he is not afraid of the restoration of the landlord of the Tsarist regime."

Krassin, during his recent visit to London, held up the Russian peasant as a great example of the change that has come over soviet Russia—a change that he claims is remarkable for its progress.

"There can be no doubt concerning the economic reconstruction of the village. Not only is the arable land increasing, but agricultural methods are becoming improved. The peasantry has undergone during these last years the greatest psychological change. The Russian peasant is today no more a forgotten slave or serf, as he was under the Tsarist regime."

"Paradoxical as it may seem, the construction of agriculture is going on all the quicker owing to the low cultural and productive level of the economic system inherited by the peasants as a legacy from the old Tsarist regime.

"In practically no European country is it possible to increase agricultural productivity by 30 per cent, or even by 15 or 10 per cent, for in all civilized countries the productive maximum of arable land has already been attained. Things are different in Russia. Without considering the area of untouched land, there exists the fullest possibility of an extraordinary increase in production even without any very large investments in artificial manures or agricultural implements, by simply bringing methods of production up to date."

Boy From California Is Yale's Superman

NEW HAVEN, July 5.—California has given Yale another "superman," this time in the intellectual class, in Francis Otto Matthiesson, whose home was in Pasadena. Yale senior students voted Matthiesson the man in their class most to be admired, most scholarly, most brilliant, and most likely to succeed. Then the faculty picked him out as the senior who has done the most for Yale "by inspiring in his classmates an admiration and love for the best traditions of that high scholarship to the service of which our universities are dedicated."

To make the honor immediately substantial, Matthiesson was awarded $500 in cash, as a result of a prize offered by Mrs. Alpheus Henry Snow, of Washington, D. C., in memory of her husband, who was a member of the Yale class of 1879. The Snow prize was awarded this year for the first time and becomes a permanent feature of the Yale prize list.

Besides getting the cash prize Matthiesson in the present year was awarded a Rhodes scholarship and the famous DeForest public speaking medal. He was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, the high-stand fraternity. Besides these activities he found time to be a class deacon in the University Y. M. C. A., managing editor of the Yale Daily News, and an editor of Yale Literary Magazine.

Connecticut Farmers Quitting Their Lands

HARTFORD, Conn., July 5.—Farms are being abandoned in Connecticut more rapidly than ever before. Leonard H. Healy, secretary of the State Board of Agriculture, reports that his office has listed twice as many vacant farms this spring as last, when ninety were given up. Various reasons are assigned for the condition.

J. A. Endicott Office Gets Fine Fixtures

J. A. Endicott, realtor, with offices at 116 South Brand boulevard, has just completed the installation of fixtures costing several thousand dollars and given his quarters a most magnificent appearance. Outside there is an electric sign, in the window a revolving display of the latest listings which are electrically lighted at night and in the interior of the room three private offices, a reception room and cloak room make for convenience in handling the large business done by this firm. Mr. Endicott is specializing in business and income properties.

Bank Increases Its Capital and Surplus

The First National bank in Glendale has increased its capital and surplus to $100,000, this amount being formerly $50,000. The directors believe that the continued steady growth of the business fully warrants this increase.

VILLAGE BECOMES TWAIN MEMORIAL

Humble Cottage Where He Was Born Restored By His Admirers

FLORIDA, Mo., July 5.—This obscure, railroadless hamlet, with little more than a store and a house to show signs of inhabitance, is to be made into a Mark Twain memorial park, if present plans are carried out.

Newspaper men of Missouri started the movement to commemorate the bluffs of Salt river out of respect for Missouri's greatest writer, whose name and reputation as a humorist are known and remembered throughout the world.

For many years residents in the little hamlet appeared almost unmindful of its distinction as the spot where the illustrious writer first saw the light of day. It was here in this spot, favored by nature with wonderful fishing streams and wooded hills, that Twain spent his happy days of boyhood.

Other towns where he had lived were alert to let the world know of the fact until not long ago Florida came out and demanded recognition of its rightful fame. The state of Missouri erected a statue of Mark Twain at the cross-roads which mark the center of the town.

The little humble cottage in which the noted writer got his breath of life had long been sinking into decay. The grounds about it had not been kept in shape, and entrance to the yard could be gained only by stepping through a hole in the rusty-hinged gate.

M. A. Violette, modest philanthropist of the village, bought the house, restored it to order in the limit of possibilities, and furnished it in the style of a century ago. The grounds now look neat and fresh, being veritably covered with a garden of blooming flowers.

Paris Police Round Up Organized Crooks

PARIS, July 5.—Since the capture of a band of international thieves by the Paris police a thorough cleanup of undesirables is taking place in the city. In this connection Monsieur Guillaume, director of the Police Judiciaire, has issued a warning to all American tourists in Paris.

"An international gang of thieves and swindlers has been operating in Europe for several seasons," says M. Guillaume. "Americans have been their special prey. The French police have succeeded in arresting several members of this gang and they have valuable information concerning the identity of missing members. In rounding up those who are still at large, American visitors in Paris can give us great assistance by immediately reporting to the nearest police officer when they are approached by anyone who attempts to strike up a friendship on a pretext of being fellow countrymen or speaking the same language.

"Do not be misguided by the fact that a new acquaintance spends his money freely and is well dressed. He is merely spending the proceeds of an earlier swindle while preparing to get your money. Note carefully any distinguishing marks and try to ascertain at what hotel this sympathetic countryman is stopping. By so doing you will not only save your own money, but you will make Europe safer for hundreds of thousands of others who come after you."

Mrs. Julius Bachrach, Who Gets Million Dollar Wedding Gift

Completion Of Boulder Canyon Dam To Double California Population

THE population of California is likely to be doubled in a few years after the completion of the Boulder Canyon dam, according to a prediction of Congressman Phil D. Swing of El Centro at the picnic of the Spanish War Veterans at Verdugo Park, at which the former soldiers and their families, to the number of several hundred, celebrated Independence day. The importance of this project was emphasized in no uncertain language. He called attention to the fact that the whole southwest will benefit not only by the additional water for irrigation but by the hydro-electric power to be made available for manufactories.

Congressman Swing asserted that he was very much interested in veterans' welfare. He stated that he was opposed to discrimination against Spanish war veterans in the matter of pensions. He expressed his opinion that their patriotism was just as worthy of recognition as any displayed before or since, and that the sacrifice of a life was just as noble in 1898 as in 1918. He said that it was worth just as much to its owner one time as another.

Peter F. Roller of Los Angeles, president of the Los Angeles County Council, explained its work briefly. He called attention to the fact that a re-organization has been effected, giving two pension boards instead of one to Los Angeles.

Commander Speaks

Tom Galbraith of Los Angeles, department commander, spoke optimistically in regard to the future of the United Spanish War Veterans' organization. He reported the formation of several new camps and admitted that the outlook for the approaching year is very promising.

Dr. William C. Babry, of 206 South Brand boulevard, commander of the Glendale camp, presided and introduced the speakers.

A. P. Entenza of San Francisco, national commander of the United Spanish War Veterans, was unable to be present.

Owing to the warmth, the baseball game between picked teams from the Pasadena and Glendale camps was postponed indefinitely.

One of the features of the day was the fat men's race. This was won by Frank E. Dickson, of 216 East Wilson avenue, city purchasing agent. The prize was an order from the Baldwin Shirt company, of 1725 South Brand boulevard, for a made-to-measure "tent."

The twenty-five-pound fruit cake from the Titus Fruit Cake company, of Hollywood, which was donated by Pendroy's, was won by Mrs. Irene Mabry, of 113 East Acacia avenue. The country store was well patronized.

Great Falls Children Paid for Dandelions

GREAT FALLS, Mont., July 5.—Children of this city have gathered more than ten tons of dandelions in the past week, according to a statement made today by Fire Chief A. J. Trodick. Sales of the dandelions are made at the three fire stations of the city by the tiny tots, who receive one cent a pound for all of the weeds they dig.

"Great Falls was overrun a few years ago, when the children's eradication campaign was inaugurated," said Chief Trodick today, "but each year the fight has stopped progress of the weeds, and in a short time all dandelions will be gone from Great Falls."

Georgia Town Plans Building Power Plant

ROME, Ga., July 5.—Financiers are planning to harness the power of Two Run creek, near here, and generate electricity for operating a combination roller mill, grist mill and overall and shirt factory. In addition to this the power will be transmitted for lights in several parts of Rome.

FOUNTAIN PENS

Two fountain pens for different inks, a lead pencil and an eraser are included in a novel writing implement.

SAYS SCHOOLS IN WEST LIMIT ART

Carleton College President Says Sufficient Funds Are Not Provided

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 5.—Universities of the west are still in the making. Culture has gone neglected as the builders of the schools concentrated upon the establishment of technical and professional schools, which are the equal of the finest in the world, according to President Donald J. Cowling of Carleton College, located at Northfield, Minn., near here.

President Cowling declared that the University of Minnesota was not provided with sufficient funds by the State Legislature to properly carry on its work in liberal arts instruction. "The University of Minnesota is nothing more than a great big, overgrown junior college," he said. "The west has built up a lot of fine technical and professional schools equal to any in the world, but in the matter of liberal arts the institutions are still in the making. Culture is not our long suit."

President Cowling urged Minnesotans to rally to the financial support of "democratic preparatory colleges." Unless such support be forthcoming, he declared, schools of that character will be compelled to increase tuition fees to an extent that will bar the ordinary student. If this be found necessary, he asserted, such schools will no longer remain the democratic institutions they now are. In twenty-five years, he said, they will have become "class schools," and all colleges of liberal arts "will meet the same fate unless the people rally to their support."

EDUCATION HERE IN ITS INFANCY

Americans Just Learning to Teach Other People, Says Professor

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 5.—"The problem facing American colleges today is not that of kicking out students because they do not take advantage of opportunities offered them, but it is rather the problem of educating those students who already are in the college," asserted Dr. Alexander Meiklejohn, president of Amherst College, addressing an audience here.

"The home of today doesn't fit the youth for college. We'll have education in American when the parents have the education we want their children to have, with the added benefits of mature judgment and experience. And when we get education going we'll spend ten times the present amount, because we will realize that in making people educated we are making them free.

"America is attempting an entirely novel experiment—that of enabling the entire crowd to partake in these higher privileges," said President Meiklejohn, calling attention to the assertion that in nations where art, literature, music and the finer things in life were appreciated, seventy-five per cent of the populations were slaves, supporting the minority who enjoyed "these higher privileges."

"For this reason," he declared, "I think American life is the finest thing ever seen on the face of this earth. Our problem of educating the whole crowd, the entire populace, will be the greatest undertaking, the finest sport, the biggest game, that human nature ever entered upon."

'Folded Arms Strike' Staged in Paris Bank

PARIS, July 5.—Because they resented the presence of policemen in their place of employment the employes of the Credit Lyonais, one of the largest banks in Paris, folded their arms and without leaving their stations remained idle for forty-five minutes, thus creating the first "folded arm bank strike" in the country.

Fifteen hundred workers took part in the strike, which was held without incident of any sort. At 9:30 in the morning a note was passed from one service to the other stating that at 10 o'clock all should fold their arms and remain that way until 11. The note stated that those who had charge of cash should lock up their money and keep strict watch, but not to serve any clients.

At 10:45 the clients at the windows had packed the lobbies and word was passed around that work could now be resumed, as it was thought the demonstration had served its purpose and shown the directors that the employes were of one mind.

May Force Business Men to Fight Fires

DULUTH, Minn., July 4.—The fellow who in years past sat at a desk and read in the newspapers how forest fires were fought in the wilds of Minnesota may this year get a chance to try his hand at that work. According to forestry men the bowery district of this city, which in years past supplied most of the fire fighters, is stripped of its usual throng of unemployed. It may be found necessary, it is stated, to draft business men for service in the event of serious fires this year.

FINDS HARDSHIP STORIES UNTRUE

Hollywood Woman Tells of Actual Conditions in Russia Today

LONDON, July 5.—Miss Lucita Squiers of Hollywood, noted scenario writer, who returned recently from a six months' stay in Russia, presents an entirely different picture of conditions to those usually brought back by travelers.

Miss Squiers has been working on a reconstruction film of the Russian famine on behalf of the Society of Friends. Accompanying her was Captain Williams, who did the picture work on Shackleton's last voyage.

They traveled on a courier train to Moscow, and, says Miss Squiers: "As far as comfort was concerned I might as well have been in a Pullman car in America. The trains arrived and left on schedule time and were clean and comfortable. There was no restaurant on the courier car, so we took our food with us, but I found restaurant cars on some of the other trains, and one could always buy food at the stopping places.

"At Moscow I stayed at the Kavazie Dvir Hotel. When I arrived there in December I had to do my own cooking on a primus stove, but by the time I left in May I was having delicious four-course dinners sent up to my room. There were several hotels with public restaurants.

"A typical menue consisted of beet soup with whipped cream, served with crisp wheat cakes. The service was quite up to the standard of any first-class European hotel, and one could have as many baths as one wished. The price of board and lodging was about $2 a day. Most of the visitors were foreigners—Americans, Danes, Dutch, English, etc."

Beauty Doctors for Pet Dogs in Paris

PARIS, July 5.—A beauty doctor for the dog is madame's latest whim in Paris. Not only must she preserve and enhance her own special charms, but those of her pet canine as well. For about $8 little Tou-tou's nose can be made more aristocratic and $5 will give Mr. Bulldog a number of distinguished wrinkles about the mouth.

And there is even hope for his legs if they are not sufficiently bowed. Only time and money are needed. A tail badly turned can be modified for the modest sum of a little more than a dollar. In fact, any sort of a defect can be swiftly removed.

GLENDALE, LOS ANGELES COUNTY, CALIFORNIA, THURSDAY, JULY 5, 1923

Police And Hospital Staff Idle While Glendale Has Safe And Sane Fourth

A WAG asks, "What comes after the Fourth of July?" And the answer is, "The fifth, of course." However, we suspect two things appear in most newspapers today throughout the country. One will be "Our fight returns were first" and the other, "Fourth takes terrible toll." Glendale is going to claim distinction for a city of 40,000 people in these respects.

First—The Glendale Evening News did not broadcast, bulletin or announce fight returns. Therefore, we shall not salve our efforts with two or three columns of bunk about beating the city papers by five minutes (which we would have done, of course). Nor shall we picture the crowds which did not collect around the office because yesterday's prize fight at Shelby, Mont., absolutely refused to interest a good handful of people here or elsewhere.

A safe and sane Fourth of July here is chronicled today and at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital's additional force of nurses were enjoying a holiday as much as though they had been off duty. The police department, which was kept on the job, also was nursing a grudge for having absolutely nothing to do for the larger part of the day.

Accidental Shooting

It was not only quiet in Glendale, but Los Angeles was as dead downtown as the parks and beaches were alive. All attractions every place got a good-sized crowd and all sorts of flag-waving was indulged in while poppers popped and crackers cracked and so on. It was the sanest Fourth of July in southern California history, it being recounted that only one man took occasion to shoot his wife. And he told the police it was accidental.

In other columns will be found accounts of the picnics and ball games here, so we will proceed to the fifth of July, which appears to have a headache after the celebration. Mayhap some of the fireworks put Old Sol's eye out last night, for certainly the sun isn't shining and no heat prostrations are scheduled. It is a good time to start on a vacation, for certainly there is no inclination to work on a day like this.

Building ought to hit a stride this month with the prospects of two hotel buildings starting a race for early completion. That will be a sporting event involving as much as the Dempsey-Gibbons fight in each instance, and the investment will be permanent. Other construction work should result in this city surpassing all previous records, it being recognized that Glendale builders must turn their efforts to major projects, such as schools, hotels, office buildings and apartments.

Fireworks, But No Fires On 4th Is Record Here

FIRST time in history of Glendale's organized fire department there was no call on the Fourth of July. This covers a period of ten years, according to Chief A. H. Lankford who is smiling over the situation.

"This is the first year the boys were permitted to shoot firecrackers without being chased by the police. Evidently when they pop 'em off in the street instead of the garage it saves us work."

"No fires" in twenty-four hours is a pretty good record for a city of 40,000.

The fifth of July is a good day to start building your own home, by the way, for the summer is recognized as one of the most ideal seasons for such work. Incidentally, there is an effort to bolster prices and stretch labor costs which will come to a peak this fall. Then you may find yourself without a roof over your head and paying more than present quotations for construction work.

This is not a threat, but a promise coming from sources watching the market conditions.

NEW YORK HEARS ABOUT GLENDALE

C. W. Dudley Tells People of East Some Facts About Growth of City

Easterners are learning something about Glendale from C. W. Dudley, 206 West Milford, who went east to attend the Shrine convention and who has been staying at the Hotel Pennsylvania in New York. Mr. Dudley is an official of the local branch of the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Company. The Pennsylvania Register of June 29, the official organ of the hotel, has the following interview with Dudley.

"The fastest growing city in the United States, according to government report, is Glendale, California," says Mr. Dudley.

"Three years ago, Glendale was a town of 10,000 inhabitants. Today it has 42,000. Building permits average $1,000,000 a month. It is practically impossible to rent a home. People from Hollywood and retired business men from all over the United States are flocking to Glendale to make it their permanent homes.

"Work has been commenced on a new million dollar sanitarium, a branch of the one at Battle Creek. Three new hotels are being erected to take care of the incoming crowds and the town has already several six-story buildings.

"The explanation of the phenomenal growth of the "Jewel City" lies in the beauty of its environs and the convenience of its situation, located midway, as it is, between Pasadena and Los Angeles, only a fifteen minute drive from each place. It is situated among snow-capped mountains only forty-five minutes from the ocean. As one approaches the city by motor the city with its many lights nestled among the foothills looks like the sky inverted."

Auto Crash Victim Has Bones Reset

Frank Western of 2639 Parkridge drive, Los Angeles, who had both legs and his left arm broken in an automobile accident June 23, had the bones reset this morning at the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital. Mr. Western was returning from the "up country" late at night. While making the first turn south of Montrose his automobile turned over. His companion, Theodore Diode of 2710 Alessandro street, Los Angeles, was uninjured.

$50,000 VALUE ON LOST LOVE

Man Wants 'Bargain Price' for Lost Wife

Mrs. Rachel Yablon

NEW YORK, July 5.—The love and affection of another wife have been appraised and a cash value set upon them.

Mrs. Rachel Yablon is the wife. Fifty thousand dollars is the value.

Morris Schratter, wealthy importer here, is asked to pay that sum to Lazar Yablon for alienating the affections of Mrs. Yablon.

If the court acts favorably on Yablon's petition when the case comes to trial here Schratter may find that love in the "second-hand" market is "day by day getting higher and higher."

For Yablon charges that he stole—literally bought—the affections of Mrs. Yablon, disregarding Yablon's rights therein.

The purchase price, according to Yablon, consisted of promises and presents, gifts of jewels and clothing, and a luxurious apartment.

If the court allows a $50,000 verdict Schratter will have paid anything but a bargain price for Mrs. Yablon's love.

Yablon declares he and his wife were happy together until Schratter came into her life with his alleged misplaced philanthropy and then the barometer of love began registering trouble ahead.

Some time back Mrs. Yablon sued her husband for divorce, later withdrawing the action, and her husband obtained a separation.

Schratter denies—and emphatically—that he has dealt in love as a sideline to his importing business and declares that he will fight the suit to a finish.

GUARDSMEN WILL LEAVE SATURDAY

Officers and Men Preparing For Summer Training at Salinas Camp

Final preparations for the annual two weeks' training of the California National Guard at Gigling Camp, near Salinas, are being made by Company M and the Third battalion, Headquaters company, who will represent Glendale at the encampment, which will last from July 7 to 22, and the local units are putting forth every effort to make the most creditable showing possible in competition with the guardsmen from all over the state who will be in camp.

The men will leave here Saturday over the Southern Pacific, under the command of J. H. Wittmeyer of Company M, and Lieutenant Hooper of the Third battalion and will reach Salinas on Sunday morning, where the townspeople will welcome them with a barbecue breakfast, after which they will be transported to Gigling Field by auto trucks, a distance of five miles.

In addition to the two infantry regiments of the California troops who will be in camp, there will also be a regiment of artillery, a unit of the signal corps, two batteries of regular artillery, a battalion of regular infantry, and a large staff of regular army instructors who will be employed in putting a polish on the state troops and teaching them the fine points of the work.

The forenoons will be devoted to drill, and rifle practice and athletics will occupy a large part of the afternoons, with many prizes offered for excellence in military work and in sports. Vaudeville artists have been engaged to appear and entertain the guardsmen twice while the training period is on, and everything possible will be done by the government to make the stay in camp as beneficial and entertaining to the men as it can be made.

PASTOR TO TALK AT KIWANIS LUNCH

'Sawdust and Shavings' to Be Subject of Lecture at Friday Meeting

The Glendale Kiwanis Club will have as its speaker tomorrow noon in the banquet room of the Tuesday Afternoon clubhouse Rev. M. E. Bollen, pastor of the First Baptist Chuch of Fullerton. His subject will be "Sawdust and Shavings."

According to Bert Perry of 1619 South Glendale avenue, chairman of the program committee, this lecture has "made a hit" when delivered before other Kiwanis clubs and is certain to be worth hearing.

In accepting the invitation to address the local club, Rev. Bollen writes: "It is sometimes desirable to have a few ropes, hammocks and awnings in the hall that all political arguments, business competitions and personal differences may be suspended during the address. It is often wise for the sergeant-at-arms to have a container near in order that the speaker may carry away the substantial expressions of appreciation that are at times delivered in the form of tomatoes and eggs. A word to the wise is sufficient."

An exhibition held for doctors only in London recently had for attendance several thousand medical men.

Ready Response To Music Club's Summer Drive To Secure Big Attractions

PREDICTIONS for a paramount program for the Glendale Music Club for the coming year are seen in the enthusiastic response of Glendale people to the summer drive for members. According to Mrs. Mattison B. Jones, president, and Mrs. Warren Roberts, treasurer, 200 new members have been secured to date. Of this number sixty-one are patron members.

It is the desire of the club officers and members to secure 200 patron members by August 1. This will assure $2,000 with which to provide a wonderful program for the coming year. Dues from regular new and old members will provide for current expenses of the club, according to Mrs. Jones.

All memberships are to be left open until August 1 and Mrs. Roberts announces that those joining the club should have their names in by that date in order to have them in the year book. She is desirous that all dues be paid by September 1.

If the $2,000 is secured from patron memberships at $10 apiece, providing seats for two persons, contracts can be signed with several nationally known artists. By signing these contracts during the summer the club will save a third, Mrs. Roberts reports.

POLICE HEADS TO GUARD PRESIDENT

Plans to Care for Traffic Congestion on Harding's Visit Under Way

Col. J. D. Fraser, Glendale chief of police, will meet the Pasadena chief of police at Long Beach tomorrow night to plan for the traffic arrangements that are to be put into effect in the two cities on the occasion of President Harding's visit here on Friday, August 3, and every possible precaution will be taken to insure that the visit of the party passes off without the slightest mishap. The two officers will present their plans to the conference that has been summoned for tomorrow by Congressman Walter F. Lineberger and other who are working to make the trip of the Harding party through this section of the Southland a success.

Others who will attend the meeting are representatives of the city's official family and of the Chamber of Commerce, and the entire schedule of the president's trip through this section will be carefully considered and plans will be made for every minute of his stay, in order that as many people as possible may see the chief executive under the most favorable circumstances.

As already urged by Mayor Spencer Robinson in his proclamation, it is desired that the city be decorated especially for the occasion in the most elaborate fashion possible, and the various civic and social organizations in Glendale will be asked to co-operate in this projects in order to see that Glendale turns out in gala attire when President Harding comes here.

BANDIT OUTRAGE ONLY BOYS' JOKE

Jest Fell Flat When Strange Woman Fails to See the Funny Angle

The two young 'bandits' who Saturday morning walked into the A. T. Dobson home at 809 North Melrose avenue and demanded 'money' of Mrs. L. M. Judd, who is looking after the premises in the absence of Mrs. Dobson, were not bandits at all, it has developed, but merely juvenile practical jokers.

Instead of modeling their act after Jesse James, they were trying to imitate Luke McLuke. Their success was instantaneous—but it is understood they will not stage a return engagement.

For obvious reasons the boys' names will not be mentioned, but they are well known in the locality. The way it all came about is quite simple. School being out and having time on their shoulders as a heavy burden, they advised between themselves what might be done to "have a little fun."

Joke Misses Fire

The result was that the older tied a crude mask over the grinning features of his little companion, and together they sallied forth to surprise Mrs. Dobson, whom both of them knew very well.

Naturally, they walked into the house—when suddenly they were confronted by a strange woman (neither of them knowing Mrs. Judd), who surveyed them with cold and appraising eyes.

It was at this point, or thereabouts, that the little fellow broke down and shed copious tears, while his senior partner began edging uneasily toward the exit.

Residents who have observed this outcropping of juvenile vaudeville talent on previous occasions wag their heads knowingly, while the old saw "boys will be boys" once more does duty.

MARCHING WITH THE LEGION

Earle Brownlie of Davenport, Iowa, led all his comrades of the American legion and other veterans, when the roll was called for Iowa state bonus. He received the first of the soldier bonus warrants. His check, No. 1 of those signed by the state auditor, was for $139.50.

When asked what he intended to do with the money, Brownlie who is a signature expert at a Davenport bank, said:

"I really don't know. I haven't decided yet. Probably I'll buy a bond with it."

The Iowa bonus board is approving claims at the rate of 800 a day.

A state service bureau to assist disabled veterans of the World War to obtain an adjustment of their claims is provided by a measure enacted by the recent Arkansas legislature. The bureau will be controlled by a commission composed of the commander of the Arkansas department of the legion, two other legionnaires and the state auditor. The legislature appropriated $10,000 for a two-year period and the law specifies that the commission may pay a salary of not more than $3,600 to the director of the bureau.

To encourage reverence for the national flag the American legion post at Winston-Salem, N. C., employs a man to raise and lower the flag each day on the courthouse square. The post also has beautified the public square, established an employment bureau and aided in equipping a juvenile relief house.

American legion posts in Wichita, Arkansas City and Winfield mobilized members for duty in connection with the recent flood disaster in southern Kansas. The veterans rescued flood victims, built dikes and patrolled the devastated areas until the period of danger had passed.

The American legion auxiliary has 13,955 more members than it had at this time last year. National officials believe that a membership of 200,000 will be attained by the end of 1923.

New fire regulations for all government hospitals caring for disabled veterans of the world war have been issued by the United States veterans' bureau, as a result of a recent survey conducted by the American Legion's national rehabilitation committee. Specially designated legion members will watch the government hospitals to see that these regulations are observed.

There are now 25,248 veterans of the world war receiving treatment in hospitals under the auspices of the United States veterans' bureau, according to information obtained by the American Legion.

STOPPING HOOD RATTLES
Don't Let Your Car Get "Tinny"

After a car has seen long service the hood is likely to become "jiggly" and begin to make an annoying noise. This may be merely the fault of the hood latches, the springs of which may have weakened until they no longer exert sufficient holding-down force, in which case their replacement will be required, or perhaps the latches only need tightening in their supports in the frame members. Most likely, however, the lacing of narrow canvas belting or rawhide, which is provided at each edge of the hood between it and the radiator shell and the cowl-edge, respectively, is displaced or flattened out so that it no longer intervenes to deaden any sound produced, when the parts vibrate together. Replacing the cushioning strips with fresh material and securely fastening this in place so that there can be no joggling of the hood against metal or wood will then be necessary. If the hood metal has become bent, if the front of the frame has been sprung in a collision or the radiator is not exactly in its intended position, the hood will not fit and will likely be noisy. Some hoods have louvres in their sides, with very narrow strips of metal between them which, if bent, may rattle against one another. This can be prevented by straightening them. If plates are provided for covering these louvres on the inside, during cold weather, they will rattle unless they are bolted tight, with a fabric strip between their edges and the hood metal. Rattling of the radiator shell on the radiator core is indistinguishable from a hood rattle and can be prevented by tightening all the fastenings which secure these two parts together. Occasionally soldered joints in the shell metal break loose and cause noise, and the overflow pipe may break loose from its fastenings and tap against the radiator. Of course, if the radiator assembly is not perfectly secure upon its cross member and well supported at its top by its tie rod, not only hood rattles but radiator damage may be expected.

A DRAGGING CLUTCH

F. McN. asks: What can cause the rear steel clutch plate of my —— car to stick against the asbestos lining of the next clutch plate, causing the transmission gears to spin when the clutch is thrown out? I have lately renewed the steel plates of this multiple dry disc clutch.

Answer: We cannot tell you positively what the cause of this trouble is, but have the following suggestion to make: Probably before you put in the new set of steel plates it had become necessary to readjust the locknut and adjusting nut of the clutch release mechanism in order to prevent slipping. When you installed the new and properly thick steel plates this adjustment would be incorrect, and would bring the two sets of plates so close together that they might not have the proper clearance to insure complete release. You may find that you can, by following the adjusting instructions in your booklet, obtain a setting which will do away with this dragging, and still insure positive engagement of the clutch. The reason why the rear pair of plates only should drag is not clear, but we think you may be able to better conditions by readjustment.

CONCERNING PISTON SLAP

J. T. S. writes: I am told that the knock in my engine is due to a slapping piston. What is the cause of piston slap and what the remedy for it? If allowed to continue, what injury will it cause?

Answer: If the diameter of a piston is considerably less than that of its cylinder bore, it may be loose enough so that it can "cock" or tip in the bore, when it moves up and down, and, in so doing, its edges strike against the cylinder wall and produce knocking sounds. By substituting a piston of sufficiently larger diameter to overcome the looseness, "cocking" cannot take place and slapping can thus be prevented, but it is often necessary to bore out the cylinder to a true form in order to make the oversize piston fit, and if one cylinder is bored out the rest of them have to be thus treated and also fitted with identical pistons, in order to make the engine balance. A slapping piston does no special harm, but is very annoying and the cylinder containing it generally leaks gas and thus is wasteful and lacking in power. An engine that has been very long in service or has been operated with poor lubrication is likely to develop piston slap.

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories — BY HOWARD R. GARIS —

UNCLE WIGGILY'S LEAKY ROOF

"Now, Uncle Wiggily," said Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, one day, as she stood before the bunny rabbit gentleman wearing her bonnet and shawl, "I am going away."

"Not forever, I hope!" exclaimed Mr. Longears, with an anxious twinkle of his pink nose. For the muskrat lady kept the hollow stump bungalow for him, and he didn't know what he would do if she left him.

"No, I am only going on a little visit," she said. "And while I am away you must do something for me."

"Do you mean I am to water your rubber plant?" asked Mr. Longears, in a sad voice. "Please don't ask me to do that. I'm sure to forget, as I did before."

"This has nothing to do with the rubber plant," laughed Nurse Jane. "But while I am away I want you to mend the hole in the kitchen roof. As it is now the rain leaks down on the stove when I am making pancakes, and I get all splashed. You must mend the leak in the roof."

"I'll be sure to do that," promised Uncle Wiggily, and he really intended to do it. But as soon as Nurse Jane had gone, Uncle Butter came over to get Uncle Wiggily to play Scotch checkers with him. And after that Mr. Whitewash, the polar bear gentleman, wanted Uncle Wiggily to play golf, and so with one thing after another, the bunny rabbit forgot all about mending the hole in the roof.

Then, the day before Nurse Jane was to return, Uncle Wiggily happened to be out in the kitchen, frying himself a bit of cheese shortcake, and as he looked up toward the ceiling he saw, through the hole, the sun shining.

"Now is a good day to mend the hole in my roof," thought Mr. Longears. "I'll get a piece of birch bark, like tarred paper, and fasten it over the hole with some sticky gum from the pine tree. Then no more rain will fall on Nurse Jane when she is frying pancakes."

Uncle Wiggily hopped to the woods and from a tree he gnawed a square piece of smooth, white birch park. From the pine tree he gathered some sticky gum, like glue and then he hurried back to his hollow stump bungalow. There were some dark clouds in the sky, and Uncle Wiggily said to himself:

"I must get the leaky roof mended before it rains."

Uncle Wiggily climbed up on his kitchen roof. It wasn't very high and he could easily reach it by jumping from the top of the step ladder. Uncle Wiggily took with him, to the roof, the piece of bark, the sticky pine tree gum and a pail of water.

"What's the water for?" asked Jackie Bow Wow, who was watching what the bunny rabbit did.

"The water is for me to pour on the roof after I have put the patch on," answered Mr. Longears, "I want to make sure I have stopped the leak. If no water drips through after I pour it on I'll be sure everything is all right."

So Uncle Wiggily began mending the opening in the roof. He spread some sticky gum around the hole, and then he spread more sticky gum on the patch of birch bark. He was just going to press the patch down over the hole, when, all of a sudden Jackie, sitting on his tail outside the hollow stump bungalow, softly whined.

"Uncle Wiggily, take a squint down through the hole in your roof and see what you can see!"

"Has Nurse Jane come home?" inquired the bunny. But when he put his eye to the hole and looked down, there, sitting in a chair in his kitchen, was the Woozie Wolf! The bad chap had slipped in to wait for the rabbit to come down off the roof, when there would be some ear nibbling.

"But I'll fool that Wolf!" chuckled Uncle Wiggily. He took the pail of water and then, through the hole in the roof, the bunny poured a lot of water down on the Wolf's head, for the bad chap was sitting right under the hole.

"Oh, zoopie!" howled the Wolf.

"Oh, zoopie! Zow! It's raining and I didn't bring an umbrella!" howled the Wolf. "Oh, I must run home and get my umbrella. I'll nibble Uncle Wiggily's ears another time." And out of the bungalow ran the Wolf. From the roof Mr. Longears tossed more water on him, so the bad chap thought it was a regular flood, and he ran faster than ever. And how surprised he was when he reached his den and found it was not raining at all! But then it was too late to get the bunny.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. Then he gummed the birch bark patch over the hole in the roof, and when he poured more water on not a drop dripped into the kitchen. So the leak was mended and Nurse Jane was very glad.

And if the piano doesn't go out to play make mud pies and get its nice white keys all black, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Betty's ball.

BILLY WHISKERS by FRANCES TREGO MONTGOMERY

"When the maid who was washing me showed the boy her arm, he laughed, and I knew from his laugh that he liked dogs and was going to take my part." Stubby went on telling his story to Billy and Button. "But his laughter made her furious, and she left the room. Then the boy hurried to me and said.

"'Poor little doggie! Don't be afraid! I won't hurt you. I know she must have nearly killed you before you gave her that little pinch. It was done in self-defense, I know. She may be pretty, but she has the temper of a fiend, and you were lucky she did not get at your hair with that brush and comb. My mistress's last little dog used to howl most pitiful when she was combing him.

"'He was a poodle, and, as you know, they have very tightly curled hair. She would put the comb into it and pull it straight through, whether it nearly killed him or not. Great handsful of hair would come out, but he did not have the spunk you have to defend yourself.

"'Come here, and I will wipe you dry and brush and comb your hair and tie on your bow of ribbon before she comes back. If I leave it to her, she will tie it so tight that it will nearly choke you. She tied the other little dog's ribbon so tight that one day he fell over in a faint just as he got to my mistress, and when she found out what the trouble was she gave Andalusia a severe scolding, and said, "See how near you came to killing my pet!"

"Andalusia told me that that was just what she had been trying to do—choke him to death, as she was tired of washing dogs. My mistress is so kind and good-natured herself that she could not imagine anyone being cruel and cross to any animal.

"'There, you really do look fine! Your yellow hair is as soft as silk, and it shines like gold in places. But I don't think much of the bow I made. I never knew a man who could tie a good looking bow-knot in my life. But my mistress will soon retie it, so it doesn't matter. Now trot along down the corridor until you come to her room, and show her how nicely you look, and she will give you some delicious tidbit. She always did the other little dog when he came from his bath,' he concluded.

"I nearly wagged my tail off to show the boy my appreciation of his kindness and ran down the hall until I came to a large room all white and gold, in which I saw my mistress standing before a mirror.

"On seeing me as I stood in the doorway she clapped her hands and cried, 'Come here! Come here, you darling little dog! How sweet you look, but, mon Dieu, what a messy bow you have on your neck! Whoever could have tied it? Andalusia used to make such pretty ones, but this looks as if a man had tied it. I guess you would not stand still long enough to let her fix it. Now don't move, and I will make a beautiful bow."

(Tomorrow Stubby tells more of his adventure.)

When Thomas placed a rosy apple by the garden gate, and then secreted himself behind a hedge, he thought he had done so unobserved, according to the Ilion Citizen. But he was mistaken. An old gentleman approached him and began to lecture: "My boy," he said, "do you not know that you are very wrong in placing that apple by that gate? Some poor boy might be tempted to take it."

"Well," said Thomas, "that's just what I want him to do."

"Why?" inquired the old gentleman.

"Why?" repeated Thomas. "Because I've hollowed out the inside and filled it with mustard."

And of the lot, perhaps eighteen
Have no kick to make.

OUR OWN SCREEN GOSSIP

Miss Marie Darling, the well-known screen actress, will appear in support of her husband, J. Wellington Frost, in a forthcoming production. It is rumored she has been supporting him for a number of years.

Catapult, Ltd., has sent its entire company and two directors and five cameramen to Cairo to film a set of scenes for the great Egyptian picture, "Cleopatra's Carouse." The Cairo referred to is Cairo, Ill.

Lulu Pretty, the eminent screen star, has sued her husband, Montmorency Biff, the well-known acrobatic comedian, for divorce on the grounds of incompatibility of press notices.

Ananias W. Piffle, press representative for Marie Tabasco, the peppy little movie star, has sued her for $50,000 for his work in putting her on the map. He says in his complaint that when he met her she was a manicure making $30 a week and he built up her popularity until her salary became $12,000 a week.

It is alleged, and with some degree of truth, that the gentleman who invented the pipe organ has saved the day for a good many "million-dollar" pictures.

A MODEL

She never says an unkind word
when poor weak mortals fall;
She peddles out no gossip of the neighborhood at all;
She hears no breath of scandal,
there is no doubt of it,
And doings of her neighbors interest her not a bit.
She doesn't scold her husband and she's not one to complain.
Though the gossips hum around her, not an item does she gain.
When the hammers are all busy
she remains discreetly mum.
Perhaps you've guessed the answer. Yes, the lady's deaf and dumb.

POEMS THAT LIVE

TO SLEEP

A flock of sheep that leisurely pass by,
One after one; the sound of rain,
and bees
Murmuring; the fall of rivers,
winds and seas,
Smooth fields, white sheets of water, and pure sky.

I've thought of all by turns, and still I lie
Sleepless; and soon the small bird's melodies
Must hear, first utter'd from my orchard trees,
And the first cuckoo's melancholy
cry.

Even thus last night, and two nights more I lay,
And could not win thee, Sleep! by any stealth;
So do not let me wear tonight away.

Without thee what is all the morning's wealth?
Come, blessed barrier between day
and day,
Dear mother of fresh thoughts
and joyous health!
—William Wordsworth.

WHEN WE TWO PARTED

When we two parted
In silence and tears,
Half broken-hearted,
To sever for years,
Pale grew thy cheek and cold,
Colder thy kiss;
Truly that hour foretold
Sorrow to this!

The dew of the morning
Sunk chill to my brow;
It felt like the warning
Of what I feel now.
Thy vows are all broken,
And light is thy fame;
I hear thy name spoken
And share in its shame.

They name thee before me,
A knell to mine ear;
A shudder comes o'er me—
Why wert thou so dear,
They know not I knew thee
Who knew thee too well;
Long, long did I rue thee
Too deeply to tell.

In secret we met;
In silence I grieve
That thy heart could forget,
Thy spirit deceive.
If I should meet thee
After long years,
How should I greet thee?—
In silence and tears.

—Lord Byron.

Spoiling the Picture

TODAY'S SHORT STORY, BY Ad Schuster

The girl stood by the gate and looked down the lane. In her pink gingham dress and sunbonnet she was the picture of the farm girl in song and story. Like the story, again, she was waiting for her lover, for the man from the city to make promises and tell of the wonders that are out of the world of the woman on the farm.

He walked jauntily along the land which led from the farm, over the gentle hill and to the shore on which stood the hotel. There were many men and women over there, summer resorters, and in the crowd many beautiful young women. The farmer girl who waited smiled and waved her hand, for had he not left them all for a walk with her in the evening?

"It is pretty soon now," he said, "when I must be going back." He looked at her curiously, then became earnest. "But I will come back. Laura, I will think of you every day, write to you every night, and before many weeks I will come back."

The girl was gazing into the glories of a sunset. "I wonder," she said, "if you will."

"I know I have only known you a week and that you look upon me with a certain amount of suspicion. Perhaps you have been reading stories about the villains who come from the city, and perhaps," he lowered his voice, "they have been warning you against me because my ways are not yours. Listen, Laura, I will prove to you and your mother I am a man of honor, a decent sort. And if I do?"

"I'll answer that," the farmer girl replied, "when you come back."

That was as near a proposal as was made. When Hugh Cummings said good-bye he sought to make light of the ceremony.

"It is not as if I won't see you soon," he laughed. "Here, take this. It is a note I wish you to read after I am gone. Promise not to open it until late tonight."

He walked off down the lane, and the farmer girl waved after him as long as he was in sight. Then she walked back to the house, seeing the path through a blur of tears. Inside, she took the hands of the woman who was there in hers and laughed as if at a joke.

"It was fine of you, Mrs. Riggs, to let me pretend you were my mother. I have had a delightful month here without any of my old friends or acquaintances finding me out. Even Mr. Cummings thinks I belong here, and oh, he has been so condescending." There was a wistful quality to the smile now. You must tell me, Mother Riggs, if he ever does come back and forward all my letters, please. But I know he won't come." Again she tried to shake off the sense of loss at his departure. "In all the stories the city man goes away and forgets all about the heroine who stands at the gate and waits. This heroine is going back home to her dad and mother."

It had not been so much of a success as she had planned, this joke, Laura Munro thought as she sat in her room an hour later. When she first met Cummings she had been amused at his patronizing air and had determined to carry out the role of the innocent country lass to the full. She would make him protest, that he would come back, swear solemn oaths of constancy. Well, it was done but there was little pleasure in the triumph. Hugh had been so considerate, so upright and earnest, it was just possible she was falling in love. She had set the trap and he had stepped in, and now, she did not doubt, he would never come back.

"If he does not come back here to ask me I can never love him," she said, "and if he does he may be angry to find out the trick I have played. I have done no more than make unhappiness certain."

Laura thought of the letter and spread it before her.

"Miss Laura Munro:—You see I know your name. You could not keep a secret like that near a hotel where the porches are so wide and where every rocking chair holds a keen observer. Of course I am not coming back to the girl on the farm, but, with all the proper credentials, I am going to call on her in the city. Won't you please hurry back to town?"

And Laura took the early train in the morning.

Mrs. Sarah Shoemaker Farley has the distinction of being the oldest pupil ever graduated from Pennsylvania State college. She is at Tarrytown-on-the-Hudson, N. American Girl Rids Crete of Bandit

Miss Margaret Robinson, a graduate of Mt. Holyoke College and representative of the Near East Relief, arrived at Crete some time ago and found the island terrorized by the Greek bandit, Barbounis, who has been carrying on outrages there for fifteen years. She found that he was interfering with the work of the relief society, so she sent an envoy to ask if he would accept amnesty and transfer his activities to the more lawful channels of the army on the Turkish frontier. He accepted and, after brief negotiations, amnesty was granted him and he and his followers embarked from Cambria to join the "King's Own" regiment at Dedeagaton.

Odd Bits About Women

Recent census figures show that there are in the United States nearly 14,000 actresses.

Gwen Richardson of London, Eng., is the first white woman to explore the wilds of British Guiana.

Of the 572 occupations listed in the recent census, only 35 failed to show the employment of women.

The proceeds of all the plays written by Queen Maria of Roumania are devoted to the charities of her country.

Betty Laurence of Montclair, N. J., is the head of a brush factory, built to national proportions by her own effort.

Mabel A. Buell, the only woman scenic artist in New York, claims that scene painting is ideal work for the woman artist, combining aesthetic progress with a large salary as few other artistic professions do.

Beauty Chats

SAFEGUARDS FROM THE SUN

It's tempting, when one is on a modest fortnight's holiday, to see how much sunburn can be acquired. It's so nice to go back to town looking gorgeously tanned and healthy, just as though one had been away two months instead of two weeks. But it's quite different a week later, when the brown begins to tone into a sickly yellow!

Bleaches can be used then, to hasten the return of the normal color. But even so, there are jaundiced weeks to be gone through. It's better, if you hate this transition period, to avoid burning as much as you can, to use your bleaches while away, as well as after you return. Personally, though I like sunburn and freckles too, I think a little of both every year is a tonic for the skin.

Vanishing cream is good to use before going boating, or for a long tramp in the wind, or out for golf or tennis. Ordinarily, I do not advise vanishing cream for the face, but at these times, with a thick coating of powder, it is useful. A thick cold cream, or petroleum jelly, can be used before you go bathing.

Make up some cucumber lotion before you leave on your holiday, and use this at night. Chop up several ripe cucumbers, put in an enamel pan with only enough water to keep them from sticking while they begin to cook. Cook to a mushy state, strain off the liquid. To eight ounces of this, add as much tincture of benzoin as goes in a small teaspoon and an ounce of alcohol, if you can get it. Let this dry on the skin; or if it is too sticky let it dry on half an hour and wash off.

A good powder to cool a hot skin is plain starch, laundry starch, sifted to make a powder.

Brown Eyes—With some people the hands indicate the condition of health when the face does not. This is particularly so when there is undernourishment. In such cases build up the system and watch for an improvement in the hands. If they soon do not become firm and, therefore, more youthful, consult a doctor. Whatever is causing this trouble with your hands is also affecting that of your legs, so improved health will correct this difficulty also.

L. D. N.—There have been preparations for curing mange on dogs that have been excellent as hair tonics, but, unless you know what is in the preparation and feel sure that it is what is needed for your scalp, you are most unwise in using it. It would be impossible for the hair to grow six or eight inches in a month.

V. T., M. C.—In the case of growing children the weight should not be considered too seriously; the condiition of the health is the only thing that should influence. A girl of fourteen years, height five feet five and a half inches, has likely attained her adult height. If her health is good her weight will regulate itself in a few more years. The eruptions on the skin at this age usually disappear if the digestion is not overtaxed.

Tomorrow—Summer Foot Treatments.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

SPIRITUALITY VS MATERIALITY

Author of "Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories"

OUT OF THE MOUTHS OF BABES

Are we getting results in our work? I will let the following letter answer. I am going to run it just as I received it. Please, typographers and proofreaders, leave the spelling "as is." If you don't think it is the dearest, cunningest letter you ever read, mothers, and if you don't get the lesson from it, there is no hope in you! Do you want your children to have rosy "chiks"? Send for the "phamlet"! It is the one on reducing and gaining, for which you must send a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope and 4 cents in stamps to me in care of this paper.

"Dear, Dear, Dr. Lulu:

"I must send you my many thanks for the phamlets which I received a month ago. And sinced that I gained 8 pounds, and mother gained 6 pounds. Oh; what a joy it is to count calories. I beg Mothers who have children they should send for the phamlets and let their children have fun to count calories.

"Calories, My Dear Morther had an afull time to make me eat things. But now I know what and how much I have to eat. I value Dr. Lulu's phamlets next to my prayer book. I read your part every day in the News. I know the calories almost by heart. Also I must tell you Dear Dr. Lulu I have rosy chiks too. I take a quart of milk every day and plenty of vegetables and fruits. My calories run between 2,000 and 2,500 every day.

"Dear Dr. Lulu will you please give my correct weight. I am 10 years old 50 inch in hight, weigh 80 pounds.—— —— Ten year old girl, Laura."

I think it is just wonderful, what you are doing, Laura, and I know you are going to help a lot of other dear children by your example. I thank you very, very much, dear, for writing me. It makes me very happy when I know I have helped someone, especially little girls and boys, and I know it will make you happy to know you have helped, too.

The weight for a girl ten years old and fifty-nine inches tall should be eighty-nine pounds at least, so you have nine pounds yet to gain, but you will soon do that. I am glad you realize the importance of eating the right foods and I am sure you will be strong and healthy and dear and sweet all your life. I congratulate your mother because she has such a nice girl as you are. Will you write to me again?

T. P.—The taking of baking soda constantly for a sour stomach is not the correct measure and ultimately will harm you. You should get at the cause of this hyperacidity and not to be treating the effect. We have an article on the subject which you may have if you send a self-addressed and stamped envelope with your request for it.

Mrs. N.—The best blood purifier is not bought in drug stores. In a balanced diet containing two or three glasses of milk and a generous amount of green leaf vegetables and fruit, you will make your own blood purifier. If you have an amoebic dysentery, the amoeba would show in a microscopic examination of your stool. If you have that type of dysentery, you will have some medication prescribed by your physician.

Yeast has a good content of the anti-neuritic vitamins and it is prescribed by physicians in selected cases, but ordinarily you should get your vitamins in your foods.

My Dear Followers:

When sending for materials which we offer you, please remember to enclose a stamped envelope bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must enclose 4 cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to me in care of this paper. Make them as brief as possible, not over 200 words, and type or write them legibly with ink. Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personally. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible, if they are of general interest. Don't forget to enclose the s. a. s. e. if you ask for an article.

Tomorrow—Milk, No. 1.

"What kind of a fellow is Watson?" asked Black.

"Well," replied White, "he's the kind of fellow who skates on thin ice, rocks the boat, races a train to the crossing and looks to see how much gas there is in the tank with a lighted match. Nobody knows why he has he has been able to live as long as he has."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Speaking of disinfectants, nothing but sun beats paint.

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Does it harm one to use talcum powder occasionally with a basis of cream? Would it make much difference if you did not have a basis of cream?

What would you advise me to do in order to get fat? BETTY.

Talcum powder is not harmful if it is used with discretion. Sometimes so much powder is put on that the skin dries and becomes rough. If you have an oily skin you will not find it necessary to apply cold cream first, but if talcum dries your skin you will find the result much better if you put on cold cream.

Drink a quart of milk a day in addition to your customary amount of food. Also eat plenty of fresh eggs, fresh vegetables and bread and butter. If you want to get fatter, he sure to have at least eight hours' sleep every night.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young man from out of town, employed as a clerk in a grocery store. Several months ago two young women began to tease and play jokes on me. It was all meant for fun and I took it as such. Then another clerk where I work made trouble by continuing the jokes and the girls got angry.

It looked as if I had told him to say what he did. It got me into an awful mess, because it caused hard feelings between several families. Please tell me what to do. I am rather shy and everything bothers me. Shall I try to explain, or will that make matters worse? ERNIE.

To try to explain will only make matters worse. In such a case I would certainly advise that you forget about the trouble as quickly as possible, because the sooner you forget it probably the sooner it will be forgotten by all concerned. Such matters usually blow over very quickly unless there is apologizing and arguing to prolong things. Try not to take things so seriously. When you know you are not to blame, do not let yourself worry. Even when you feel you are to blame, profit by your mistake, but do not waste time worrying.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am considered a very pretty girl and I have all the clothes I want and nice clothes. I have a girl friend who is good-looking, but her father is dead and she has hardly any nice clothes and she has to wear every thing she owns until it is literaliy worn out. The thing I can't understand is why this other girl is very popular and has company all the time, while I could almost sit at home forever without an invitation to go somewhere.

My parents can't understand this either and so my mother tries in every way to make things pleasanter for me. I have parties and try as best I can to be popular.

What would you advise me to do? ALICE.

You have too much faith in material advantages. It is very true that a pretty face and fine clothes go a long way to win popularity, but they are not enough. Unless you have a loving heart and a winsome personality your beauty and money will avail you little.

My advice is to stop wondering what is wrong with you. Start at once thinking about other people and forgetting yourself. I am sure that if you make the effort you can endear yourself to people so that you will not want for friends. In order to do this, however, you must form new standards of value and must consider the real you and not the body and environments which form a setting for the real you.

Friends, like everything else worth while, must be worked for and earned.

Dinner
Baked Cod, Lemon Slices

The four vegetables most safely canned by the Intermittent Cold Pack Method, rather than by the One-Period Cold Pack Method, are asparagus, peas, beans and corn. I have already dealt with the first two vegetables, so today will give directions for the last two:

Getting the Beans Ready to Process—Prepare as though for serving on the table (lima beans shelled, and string beans cut in short lengths). Put them in a cheesecloth bag (use one teaspoon of baking soda to one gallon of water. Let remain in this bath for three minutes if the beans are young and tender, otherwise for five minutes. Then plunge them, in the bag, into a cold salt bath (use one tablespoon of salt to every quarter of water used) for 30 seconds. Drain, pack in sterile jars, and add a hot brine (two and one-half ounces of salt to every gallon of boiling water) to within one-fourth inch of jar-top.

Getting the Corn Ready for Processing—Put husked ears in a cheesecloth bag and lower into boiling water (no soda needed with corn). Leave in this water from one to three minutes, depending upon the tenderness of the ears. Then plunge quickly in and out of cold water (not salted). Cut kernels from cobs and pack in sterile jars; add one-fourth teaspoon each of salt and sugar, and pour in boiling water to cover corn.

How to Process Either Beans or Corn—Put clean rubbers on jars, then sterile glass covers, and put top wire over covers, but do not press down side wires. Stand these jars on a wire rack in your wash-boiler, in boiling water to cover them to the depth of one inch. Let the water boil around them for one hour. Do this for three successive days, completely sealing the jar at the end of each of the hour-long periods of processing (by pressing down the side wire), but raising this side wire at the beginning of each processing to allow for expansion. Keep jars in ordinary room-temperature over night between these three intermittent periods of processing. This method gives the spores not killed by the first boiling of the jar a chance to develop into the easily killed vegetative form and then be destroyed by the second, period of boiling. And the third period makes the method doubly safe.

Tomorrow—Decorating Articles with Sealing Wax

All inquiries addressed to Miss Kirkman in care of the "Efficient Housekeeping" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question. Be sure to use your full name, street number, and the name of your city and state.—The Editor.

Side Talks

by Ruth Cameron

THE DREAM WE KEEP

"Tall ships, tall ships, sailing out to sea,
Have you in your dreaming hearts any room for me,
For a little singing maid who would sail with you
Out to where the ocean waves are blue, blue, blue."

"Did you ever see a man in a pale blue satin robe taking his bird for a walk?

"Did you ever see a mile-long funeral procession that stopped at the command, 'Gentlemen, it is time to weep'?

"Would you like to know the Temple of Heaven, or the Lotus ponds by the Summer Palaces, or the great golden roofs of the Forbidden City?"

Poetry In An Advertisement

From the advertisement of an Oriental steamship line in my morning paper these three questions, and several more as cruelly calculated to waken the wanderlust and tantalize the heart that has to stay at home and rest when it wants to wander, it knows not where, stared up at me yesterday.

The picture of a little Manchurian beauty caught the eye and then those pictures in words held it.

For more time than I could afford to spend that way I sat in the morning sunshine seeing nothing of the beauty about me but dreaming dreams and seeing visions of the beauty of other lands.

And I thought to myself: "If some day I can see some of these wonderful countries, then life will be truly complete."

Memories Versus Dreams

Yet even as I thought it a memory came into my mind.

For many years I had wanted to visit a certain little strip of country a few hundred miles from my home. I had heard many people speak of that bit of country and its name had come to mean to me a dream that was some day to come true.

Last year I took a motor trip to that place. It was very beautiful. I enjoyed my visit. But then a queer thing happened. The next time I heard the name of that place spoken it awakened pleasant memories, but it had lost its magic.

Instead of conjuring up a dream of something different and fascinating it simply brought a picture of what I had seen—beautiful enough but not vague and romantic.

The Two Greatest Tragedies

Bernard Shaw says: "There are two tragedies in life. One is not to get your heart's desire, the other is to get it."

Can it be that if we never see the Temple of Heaven or the Lotus Ponds by the Summer Palaces or the Great Golden Roofs of the Forbidden City, we shall have a certain romantic joy in the sense of their existence and the hope of seeing them some day that will be not altogether inferior to the dream's fulfillment?

Can it be that if we never sail in those tall ships sailing out to sea we shall still get a joy from the love of them and the longing to sail, paler, of course, than the joy of those who sail, but none the less exquisite?

Tomorrow—That's Gratitude.

(Copyright, 1923, George Matthew Adams)

The girl was very rich and the young man was poor. She liked him, says the Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph, but that was all, and he knew it.

"You are very wealthy," he remarked.

"Yes," she replied, frankly. "I'm worth a half million dollars."

"And I am poor," he continued.

"Yes," she asserted.

"Will you marry me?" he asked.

"No," with emphasis.

"I thought you wouldn't," he said.

"Then why did you ask me?"

"Oh, just to see how a man feels when he loses a half million."

The efficacy of fumigation depends upon the concentration of the gaseous germicide. Broadly speaking, fumigation that does not destroy flies and roaches will not destroy germ life.

"U. S. IMPORTS BREAKING ALL RECORDS," SAYS APPRAISER

American merchants are buying abroad more heavily than at any time in the country's history, F. J. Fracke, United States appraiser, said in an address recently. As a result the United States government will collect more than $550,000,000 in customs duties on the more than $3,000,000,000 worth of goods brought into this country in the fiscal year that ends June 30.

The quantity of imports for the fiscal year exceeds that of any other, although in 1920, the peak year, the money value of the imports was higher. The $550,000,000, however, is the biggest sum the government has ever collected from customs duties and is attributable, the appraiser believes, to the high tariff of the Harding administration.

"The expenditure by Americans of three billions of dollars in foreign countries for raw and finished goods is the greatest act of economic reconstruction performed by any country since the armistice," Kracke declared.

"Our imports today are exceeding our exports. When this announcement was made recently by the Department of Commerce, the nation was astounded. Eight months ago it was predicted the present tariff would destroy our imports. As a matter of fact and record, this one act not only brought prosperity to the entire country, but our nationwide prosperity and nationwide demand for raw materials and finished goods has been so great that foreign manufacturers and producers have been able to share with the people of this country the period of industrial and commercial prosperity.

"This is the biggest single contribution of the United States to world normalcy since the armistice. The fact that we are today consuming larger quantities of foreign goods than ever in our history means that the mills, mines and factories of foreign nations are busy because we, in this country, are busy. It shows our prosperity cannot be tolerated; that the United States commercially is not isolated and that this country, by its purchases abroad, is laying the foundation for an era of international prosperity which only international political uncertainties can disturb."

Baby, Eight-Months, Made Japanese Peer

TOKIO, July 5. — The raising of Tsunco Isahaya, eight months old, to the rank of baron has made this young scion of a prominent Tokio house the youngest titled person in Japan. The unusual promotion of a child to this rank came about recently when his father, Baron Fujio Isahaya, persuaded the Imperial Household Department to allow him to retire from his position as active head of his family.

The accumulation of large debts and a scandal which caused his wife to leave him are given in Tokio as the reason for Baron Isahaya's retirement. It is even whispered that the other members of the baron's family promised him Y200,000 ($100,000), provided he would surrender his title and position to his eight-month-old-son. He followed his announcement of retirement by a statement that he was giving up his position because he desired to travel in foreign lands for a number of years.

Traces Are Found of Ancient Civilization

JOHANNESBURG, July 5.—Remarkable discoveries of ancient hieroglyphics and traces of an ancient road and a lost civilization are reported by a prospector who has just returned to Lorenzo Marques from the low-lying country beyond Inyanga, a district situated north of Matabeleland. Altogether, he says, there were many indications that the region had had a large population of non-Bantu origin.

EAGLE ROCK

P.-T. A. PLANNING SCHOOL SURVEY

Improvement of Conditions Is Association's Aim, President States

Efforts are being made to better school conditions in Eagle Rock. At last week's meeting, called by Mrs. J. C. Reiter, president of the Central school Parent-Teachers Association, it was decided to make a survey of conditions and call another meeting at 8 o'clock Monday night, July 9, at the public library. Every interested organization is urged by Mrs. Reiter to have a representative present.

The presidents of Eagle Rock's three Parent-Teachers associations, in an effort to further better school conditions, particularly with a view to taking care of the children during vacation time, have appointed a committee, with Mrs. S. B. Osborne chairman, to take what steps may be necessary to secure supervised play on the Central school grounds this summer.

It is planned to have a supervisor on duty, assisted at certain hours by trained instructors in singing, folk dances, games and other playground activities. Should the committee achieve its ambition, it is believed the plan will meet with the wholehearted approval of local parents.

Music for Veterans

The disabled soldiers at Sawtelle will be entertained on July 12 at the auditorium in the Soldiers' Home, by a group of Eagle Rock musicians and singers, among them those who recently entertained the world by radio.

The new officers of the Juvenile Music club are: Howard Mann, president; Olga Griffin, vice-president; Frances Baly, secretary; Dickey Baly, treasurer; and Elaine Geis, chairman of the program.

CHILD USHERS IN THEATRES BARRED

Ruling Forbids Employment Of Girls Under Eighteen In Picture Houses

SACRAMENTO, July 5.—Employment of girls under eighteen years of age as ushers in theatres is prohibited in California under a ruling just handed down by Attorney General Webb. Hundreds of girls will be forced to quit their jobs as a result of the ruling.

Ruling at the instance of State Labor Commissioner Walter G. Mathewson, Webb held that employment of young girls in moving picture houses or other show houses is in violation of the Child Labor Law.

The attorney general also instructed the labor commissioner to prohibit the employment of girls under age in root beer stands or other "public places".

Company 1 Recruits

In preparation for their encampment from July 8 to 23, at Gigling field, near Salinas, Company 1, Burbank's unit of the California National Guard, is calling for recruits and hopes to enlist twenty more young men before the end of the week.

Captain Tillson and his helpers have been reinforced by two sergeants from regimental headquarters in Los Angeles, E. L. Welsh and E. Flowers, who have been successful in obtaining several rookies to make the trip with the Company 1 boys.

The inducements offered are a two weeks' vacation with salary, board, clothing, a general good time, plus some valuable military training and exercise.

The company will leave for camp Saturday afternoon and will arrive Sunday morning, where they will be met by the townspeople of Salinas and conducted to the encampment, which is about five miles from the city.

Before they leave Salinas Sunday morning, they will be given a barbecue breakfast by the townspeople, from which point on they will partake of camp "chow" for two weeks. This, it is understood, will not be hard to take, as a number of the cooks shake a wicked cleaver and roll a mean pin.

Officers Installed

Installation of the newly elected officers of the Women's club has been accomplished. Mrs. J. A. Johnson, outgoing president, presented Mrs. Walter Fisher, incoming president, with a small book which will help her in her office.

Mrs. Coburn, newly elected recording secretary, replied to her installation with a few lines of original poetry.

Mrs. Yale was elected a director for a term of four years, as was Miss Jane Thompson. Mesdames Rummell, Anderson and E. A. Fischer were elected directors for two-year terms.

The next meeting of the club will be held at 2 o'clock the afternoon of the second Tuesday in September.

LINERS CUT OUT LIQUOR CARGOES

Foreign Shippers See Futility Of Fighting Dry Law In U. S. Harbors

By W. H. ATKINS
For International News Service

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Diplomatic tension over the enforcement of American prohibition laws against foreign ships was considerably relieved today when the state and treasury departments were advised through consular channels that practically all foreign ship lines have decided to stop loading beverage liquor under seal for the homeward voyage.

Having concluded, it was explained at the treasury, they were playing a losing game by having all their non-medical liquor confiscated as soon as it reached the United States, the British and French steamship operators will make no further attempts to violate the Volstead act pending an adjustment of the ship liquor tangle.

American consular officers, keeping strict watch upon ship operations at foreign ports, cabled that foreign liners are taking aboard only enough liquor to safeguard needs of passengers and crews on the western trip.

Reaching American ports, officials said today, American officers will take every possible precaution to assure foreign liners ample medicinal liquor stocks for their return trip.

MOBILITY TESTS FOR ARMY FLYERS

Operations Closely Simulate Conditions in Actual Warfare of Today

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—A recent practice problem was held by the Ninety-first Observation Squadron, Crissy field, for the purpose of determining the mobility of this type of organization. Full field equipment and all transportation covered by suitable operations orders was moved to the lower end of the flying field, where camp was established and the noon day meal was served. Radio communication was established with the main station within fifteen minutes after arrival at camp.

The entire movement was conducted in accordance with orders, and was carried on in a manner as nearly simulating war conditions as possible. The movement involved the land transportation of thirteen airplanes and twenty-six trucks and trailers. Captain George H. Peabody, Air Service, served as inspector and gave a thorough critique of the method of operation and the manner in which the movement was conducted.

Based upon the above movement, it is intended to prepare immediately suitable operations orders and other data which will enable the Ninety-first Observation Squadron to move, in twenty-four hours notice, either for a period of a day, ten days, six weeks, or three months.

ENGLAND, FRANCE NEAR RUHR SPLIT

Independent Action Urged By British Press as Tension Grows

By DAVID M. CHURCH
For International News Service

LONDON, July 5.—Tension between England and France on the Ruhr and reparations problem was increasing today as a result of the developments that delayed conversations Monday between Count de Saint Aulaire, French ambassador to London, and Lord Curzon, British secretary for foreign affairs.

Count de Saint Aulaire was expected to visit the foreign office again today and make a verbal answer to the Curzon questionnaire as to the French interpretation of passive resistance, which has been the stumblingblock in the path of concerted allied action on reparations.

Press comment, which was responsible for the failure of the representatives of the two countries to get together Monday, again suggested today that "the time is ripe for independent action" on the part of England.

French Resentful

Such suggestions, given a semi-official tone, roused resentment in Paris, although denied in part yesterday by the British foreign office.

In French circles the press reports that England would take independent action unless a speedy agreement was reached with France, were interpreted as "threatening" and Premier Poincare is understood to have sent a note to Lord Curzon, stating that France could not enter negotiations "under menace." He suggested that the reports be denied.
